WARD JURORS HEAR SLAYER'S WIFE AND MOTHER OF VICTIM

Youth and Fashion Contrasted With Age and Mourning in Day of Thrills at Trial.

STATE'S CASE ENDS TODAY

Sheriff, Ex-Prosecutor and Pistol Expert Testify—Lawyers in Many Clashes.

Virtually completing its case yesterday, the State in a sudden dramatic gesture brought into striking contrast on the witness stand a slender young woman in blue and a middle-aged woman in black at the White Plains trial of Walter S. Ward, charged with the murder of Clarence M. Peters. The woman in blue was the wife of Ward, and the woman in black was the mother of Peters, his victim.

The hands of the clock facing Justice Wagner and the jury were crawling to noon, and luncheon-bound school children in the street outside were shouting joyously when Attorney General Carl Sherman wheeled suddenly toward the woman in blue.

"I call Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward to the stand," he said in a voice purposely kept soft, almost gentle.

The figure in the schoolgirl frock of navy blue stiffened. A look of surprise swept her worried features. Ward half rose in his chair. The hands of his attorneys reached toward him. His small, sallow face turned red, then white, then back to red. His lips parted. Then his self-control asserted itself, masking his face with the calm it has shown throughout the trial.

All Eyes Centred on Wife.

Around the jury box, through the slanting beams of sunshine, went Mrs. Ward. Three hundred persons in the silent courtroom hunched forward. Several women got up to watch her every movement. The twelve swivel chairs in the jury box swung as one to face the witness stand. Mrs. Ward's nervous hands fluttered aimlessly toward her straying, fluffy brown hair as she faced Gerland Fitzgerald, Clerk of the Court, for the oath.

"And do you solemnly swear that the evidence you shall give——" went the sing-song voice of the clerk. Some one coughed in the gaping crowd. The sound seemed to startle the short young woman standing with upraised right hand and twitching lips.

The clerk's monotone droned on. A paper was rustled and the blow against the quietness sounded like a crash.

"So help you, God," concluded the clerk. A nod and an almost inaudible "I do" came from Mrs. Ward. She slipped into the chair with a motion that suppressed excitement made awkward. Her brown eyes crept slowly around to her husband's face and clung there. A smile of encouragement met her. Bending forward, with tones as low as the replies of the witness, Mr. Sherman began.

The hands of the clock slipped past 3 o'clock. Mrs. Ward had almost forgotten her experience, and several humdrum witnesses had told their unimportant stories. Court had slipped back into its dreary round when again the tall, thin Attorney General, youthful and tense, arose.

Court Again Stirred.

"I call Mrs. Elbridge Peters to the stand," he said, and the announcement again stirred the court.

A wait of seconds. The big oaken door back of the witness chair and near the jury box swung in slowly. A short, blunt-featured woman, with a broad, lined face, came in slowly. She was dressed in deepest mourning and a heavy veil was thrown back over her turban. Black jet beads glistened in harmony with a wide jet-handled hatpin stuck daggerwise in her hat. A wide, work-worn hand, with a cheap black stone ring, was raised as the oath was administered.

She sank wearily into the chair. At the table of his many lawyers Ward's eyes seized upon her and never left her face. It was the first time they had seen each other, but she never once looked in his direction. Her dark eyes picked out a spot on the oak-ribbed wall of the courtroom and seldom shifted. In the voice of Mrs. Ward there had sounded the ring of refinement; in the voice of Mrs. Peters there was a dull note that seemed to throb.

Five eager minutes the mother told her story—a briefly pathetic effort to explain away the crimes chalked against her son by the defense. Eighteen lingering minutes gave Mrs. Ward an opportunity to register her loyal stand by the side of her accused husband, and as she left the witness stand her pent-up feeling broke and she wept unrestrainedly.

Advancing close to the counsel rail, so that his voice might carry to her, Attorney General Sherman sought by every means at his command to make easy the ordeal for the wife.

"Mrs. Ward," he began, "what time

Harding's Former Newspaper Becomes Independent Organ

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 24.—The Marion Star, owned by President Harding until before his Alaska trip, will hereafter be an independent newspaper, its present publishers announced today.

The Star was bought by Mr. Harding after his Republicanism had got him discharged from The Marion Tribune (he insisted on wearing a Blaine hat on the job) and since the 80s has been one of the strong Republican papers of Ohio.

Roy D. Moore and L. B. Brush, Ohio men, who bought The Star from Mr. Harding, and its morning contemporary, The Tribune, made today's announcement in conjunction with a notice that they had suspended publication of The Tribune.

"The modern requirements of a newspaper are too severe to permit two complete representative and independent newspapers in a city the size of Marion," said the announcement.

Tells Red Cross America Showed Idealism by Retiring "Independent and Unbought."

SEES ADVANCE TO PEACE

And Praises Practical Moral Force—Japanese Envoy Says Our Aid Defeats Jingoes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—President Coolidge, making the opening speech at the national convention of the American Red Cross, which began its sessions here this morning, declared that when the United States retired from Europe with the World War won, yet "unencumbered by spoils, independent, unattached and unbought," it marked the only course that America, under like circumstances, probably will ever adopt.

Civilization, the President declared, is coming to rely more and more upon moral force, and in the application of this force it was plain that the President hopes and expects America to play a leading part. The address was President Coolidge's first formal public utterance since he became Chief Executive.

The President recalled in a word of appreciation the fact that the Conference for the Limitation of Armament had brought about a reduction by the great powers, and this sentiment was echoed by Ambassador Hanihara of Japan, who in a moment of deep emotion declared that America's quick and generous contribution to the relief of the Japanese earthquake sufferers will prove even more far reaching, so far as the friendship of the two nations is concerned, than did the signing and ratification of the Washington treaties.

John Barton Payne, Chairman of the Red Cross National Executive Committee, introduced the Chief Executive.

President Coolidge's Speech.

The President's speech was as follows:

"The idea of charity is very old. It is included in the teachings of the earliest philosophers. It is one of the fundamental doctrines of our Bible. It is a spiritual conception of human relationship. It is life in obedience to the things that are unseen.

"Throughout history men have been prone to put their trust in other things and have failed," the President continued. "They have sought for power through material resources alone. They have thought it might be gained by the accumulation of great riches. They

2 AMERICANS DEAD, 3 MORE BALLOONS SMASHED IN RACE

U. S. Army Entry Is Hit by Lightning in Storm While Passing Over Holland.

TOTAL DEATHS NOW FIVE

Anxiety Is Felt for Several Craft Not Heard From—U. S. Navy Airmen Land Safely.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—The international balloon race for the Gordon Bennett Cup developed into an international disaster. Already five men have lost their lives, one is believed to be fatally injured and not less than six balloons were destroyed or badly damaged.

Lieutenants Olmsted and Shoptaw of the U. S. Army balloon S-6 are among those who perished, but the U. S. Navy A-6699 made a safe landing at Putteen, Holland.

Some of the contestants have not been heard from; they may have escaped the fury of the storm, or met the same fate as the British balloon Margaret, the latest to be reported, which fell into the sea off Denmark.

The casualty list is as follows:

United States Army S-6, struck by lightning and burned; Lieutenants Olmsted and Shoptaw killed.

The Spanish balloon Polar caught fire from a lightning bolt and fell near Heyst-Goor; Pilot Barca killed and his assistant, Gomez Guillamon, badly injured.

The Geneva, Swiss, struck by lightning near Beverloo and burned in midair. Her pilots, von Gruningen and Wehren, killed.

Ville de Bruxelles, Belgian, damaged before the start and withdrawn.

Margaret, British, fell into the sea near Skagen, Denmark. Pilots Allen and Berry saved.

St. Louis, American, burst before start.

So far as reported late tonight the following balloons had made safe landings:

United States Navy A-6699, Lieutenants Lawrence and Reichelderfer, landed at Putten, Holland.

Fernandez Duro, Spain, at Schryck, Holland.

Banshee III., British, at Eersel, Holland.

Zurich, Swiss, at Eersel.

Savoie, French, at Turnhout, Belgium.

Fernande II., French, near Antwerp.

The Belgica, Belgian, is reported to have landed, but this is not confirmed.

A message from Polit Veenstra, of the Belgian Prince Leopold, reported, "all well."

The Picardy, French, piloted by Bienaime and Ravaine; the Helvetia, Swiss—Armbruster and Bachman, and the Espheria, Spanish, piloted by Guillen, have not ben heard from.

Says Race Could Not Be Postponed.

The officials of the Brussels Aero Club, appalled by the catastrophe, point out that they had advocated postponement of the race, but found that the rules were absolutely inflexible. They will propose changes to overcome this difficulty in future. Many members, however, favor canceling the competition altogether.

The S-6 was caught in the vortex of a terrific southwesterly gale in crossing the Belgian frontier about 7 o'clock last evening, the rainstorm forcing the balloonists to unload all their ballast. When the balloon crashed at Nistelrode, in Holland, both men were dead.

Lieutenant Olmsted was killed outright when lightning struck the balloon, while Lieutenant Choptaw suffered

Destroyers' Captain Admits Altering Course; Says Kittelle Ordered a Speed of 20 Knots

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—A tale of the Honda disaster told by the destroyer squadron commander, who two weeks ago saw seven of his ships impaled on the rocks near Point Arguello and twenty-three of his men go down to death, took up today's sessions of the naval inquiry board investigating the wreck.

Captain Edward H. Watson, chief of the Eleventh Squadron, was the commander who told the story, and in it he took upon himself full responsibility for the catastrophe. He asked that none of the blame be allowed to fall on his "able and loyal subordinates," against whom he had no complaint to make.

That the Court was not entirely satisfied with Captain Watson's testimony taking upon himself all of the responsibility, however, began to be evident late today when Admiral William V. Pratt, presiding member of the investigating body, asked him whether he had ever objected to his division commanders asking independently for radio compass bearings with which to check their squadron commander's navigation or to take soundings for the purpose of making sure that the squadron flagship was right in its dead reckoning.

To these questions Captain Watson answered that he had not objected, but under cross-examination by counsel for the division commanders involved he qualified his answer by saying that soundings could not have been taken while the squadron was traveling at twenty knot; that a division commander would first have had to ask him for permission to slow down for soundings.

Here Admiral Pratt interrupted again.

"But as a matter of fact were your navigation facilities any better than those of your division commanders had they chosen to exercise a little initiative?" he asked.

"No," answered the witness.

"Do you feel that you can assume all of the responsibility that at times must fall on the shoulders of your division commanders, particularly that part of their responsibility which concerns the safeguarding of their vessels?"

"I have no desire to assume their responsibilities," answered Captain Watson. "I simply want to make clear that I assume all of my own."

He said that he himself had made the decision to turn east at 9 o'clock on the night of Sept. 8, five minutes before his squadron crashed.

He denied emphatically that liquor was in any way responsible for the disaster and said that if any of his officers or men had had liquor aborad their ships he must have known about it.

Captain Watson told of the apparently conflicting radio compass bearings from Point Arguello, of how one received early in the afternoon indicated his squadron was south of the point when he knew he was north; how a reverse bearing was asked for and given, and how this incident shook any confidence he might have had in the direction signals from that station.

His instructions from Rear Admiral Kittelle were, said the Captain, that the speed of the voyage was to be not less than twenty knots. Captain Watson then issued orders to his squadron officers, he testified, passing on the instructions he had received.

ALL OKLAHOMANS CALLED TO ARMS

Governor Walton Directs Citizens to Help Adjutant General Bar Legislature.

'SHOOT TO KILL!' HE ORDERS

Legislators Adhere to Session Plan—One Says 90 Per Cent. of Troops Belong to Klan.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—Adjt. Gen. B. H. Markham was ordered tonight by Governor J. C. Walton to "use all force of arms necessary" to prevent the session of the lower house of the Oklahoma Legislature called for noon Wednesday.

All male citizens of the State between the ages of 21 and 45 were directed in the order to hold themselves in readiness, "with such arms as they possess or can obtain, to come to the assistance of the sovereign State of Oklahoma when ordered to do so by the Governor."

"The troops will be ordered to shoot to kill, if that is necessary to prevent the assembly," Governor Walton told newspaper men. "I hope, however, that no such measures will be necessary."

As a precaution against any attempt of the legislators to meet elsewhere should they be barred from the House Chamber, at the State Capitol, the Governor also directed Adjt. Gen. Markham to disperse the meeting at "any other time or place in the State of Oklahoma."

With issuance of the military order all doubt was removed as to the Executive's determination to prevent the House session, which has been called by his legislative opponents to consider his impeachment.

Governor Walton reiterated his charge that the proposed meeting would be an unlawful assembly, "dominated and controlled by the Ku Klux Klan," and an attempt to break the peace.

The Governor denied he intended taking action in the Federal Court to determine the legal status of the proposed meeting. He likewise denied that he had sought Federal aid in his war on the Ku Klux Klan.

"Whenever the Government steps in the issue is theirs,' the Executive asserted. "I would like for them to take over this fight because it's a bear on my hands, but until they do the State of Oklkahoma is fully capable of looking after it."

Says Klan Controls Guard.

A statement declaring that "ninety per cent. of the members of the Oklahoma National Guard are members of the Ku Klux Klan" and that "if the contention of Governor Walton that N. C. Jewett, Grand Dragon of the Klan in Oklahoma can call the scheduled session of the State Legislature, then all that would be necessary to stop martial law in Oklahoma would be for Jewett to call out the Klan members of the guard" was issued here today by Dr. G. S. Long, Representative from Tulsa County in the State Legislature.

Dr. Long, an admitted member of the Klan, made it plain, however, that such action would not be taken by leaders of the organization.

Speaking for the legislators, Representative W. D. McBee reiterated, "We will meet."

"The Governor claims that we are a 'Klan mob,'" Representative McBee said. "We claim that we are neither 'a Klan mob' nor an 'anti-Klan mob.' We do not claim to champion the cause of either class, but we do champion the

NEW COMPLICATION IN HYLAN'S ILLNESS

Mayor Now Suffering From Phlebitis, Inflammation of the Femoral Vein.

ANOTHER DOCTOR IS CALLED

Latest Trouble, Which Began a Week Ago, Now Subsiding, Physicians Say.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The illness of Mayor John F. Hylan has been complicated by an inflammation of the femoral vein of the right thigh, which has caused an accumulation of waste fibroid material resulting from the effort of his system to throw off the pneumonic infection, it was learned today. This accumulation of waste material has blocked the femoral vein almost completely, nearly shutting off circulation there and causing the Mayor's right leg to swell to twice its natural size. A similar thrombus phlebitis, the medical term for this affection, which also resulted from pneumonic infection but which centred in a more vital point, was the immediate cause of the death of President Harding.

The interruption to the blood flow in the femoral vein began just a week ago, but news of it was withheld by the Mayor's physicians at his request. It became public today through the arrival of Dr. Lewis A. Conner, a specialist from New York Hospital, who is the eleventh physician called during Mayor Hylan's illness.

The swelling of the leg, which has already been reduced by about one fourth, is said to have caused the Mayor comparatively little discomfort but considerable uneasiness. No further danger is feared from this particular vein stoppage. It was said that a similar swelling might occur in the other leg but that the danger of the blocking of a more vital blood vessel was at a minimum.

Doctors' Bulletin.

Dr. Conner arrived on the afternoon train and examined the Mayor with Drs. George F. and Carl R. Comstock, the local physicians in the case. The following bulletin was issued at 4 P. M.:

The convalescence of Mayor John F. Hylan has been complicated by a mild phlebitis of the right leg, which is now beginning to subside and which is causing only slight discomfort. The pulmonary condition is clearing satisfactorily. Temperature 99.1, pulse 82, respiration 22.

LEWIS A. CONNER, M. D.
GEORGE F. COMSTOCK, M. D.
CARL R. COMSTOCK, M. D.

"It is a condition which sometimes follows pneumonia," Dr. Conner said just before taking an evening train for New York. "Usually it affects both legs. It is quite possible that the left leg may become affected. It is not serious, but it is quite impossible to say at this time whether any other complications may follow."

John F. Sinnott, son-in-law and Secretary to the Mayor, said that the latter, except for the comparatively slight pain caused by the swelling, was feeling better. "The swelling has been reduced so the kneecap can now be seen," Mr. Sinnott said.

Cause of the Thrombus.

Dr. George F. Comstock said he considered the development of any further thrombus formation unlikely. He explained that the blocking of the femoral

Oxford Men Coming to Debate French Policy In the Ruhr With More Than 14 Colleges

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Sept. 24.—The French policy in the Ruhr will be the subject of a series of debates between teams of the Oxford Union, the Oxford University Debating Society, and a dozen American colleges, it was announced here today. The debates will be conducted within the next month.

Plans for the tour were discussed today by Frank Aydelotte, President of Swarthmore College and American Secretary to the Rhodes trustees, and members of the English debating team. The Oxford orators include J. D. Woodruff of New College, former President of the Union; C. H. O. Scaife of St. John College, former Junior Librarian of the Union, and G. A. Gardiner of Magdalen College, Junior Treasurer of the Union.

Woodruff and Scaife were the members of the team who conferred with President Aydelotte. It was decided that the Englishmen would visit Swarthmore College on Oct. 5. The teams will be split for that debate with two Swarthmore debaters and one Oxford man upholding the French policy and two Oxford men and a Swarthmore representative opposing the French occupation of the Ruhr.

There will be no judges. The audience will act as jury and will render the decision as to which side wins. Each speaker may deal with one phase of his subject and the first men on each team will close the debate.

The American colleges and universities that will be visited by the veteran debating team of the English university are: Bates, Sept. 27; Dartmouth, Sept. 28; Vassar, Oct. 2; Princeton, Oct. 3; Bryn Mawr, Oct. 4; Swarthmore, Oct. 5; George Washington University, Oct. 6; Harvard, Oct. 8; Columbia, Oct. 9; Yale, Oct. 10 or 11. Other universities that will be visited, although no definite dates have as yet been fixed, include Syracuse, Cornell, Toronto, Montreal and several other Canadian institutions.

BERLIN DECIDES TO END RUHR FIGHT AT ONCE AND WITHOUT CONDITIONS; ORDERS RESUMPTION OF ALL WORK

STRESEMANN ANNOUNCES IT

Action Follows Meeting With Representatives From Occupied Area.

ALL UNANIMOUSLY FOR STEP

Precautions Taken to Prevent Any Uprisings by Monarchists and Communists.

BERLIN, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—Chancellor Stresemann announced tonight that the Government had decided to abandon passive resistance immediately and unconditionally, and had ordered resumption at once in the Ruhr and Rhineland in all lines of industry.

This decision was reached after a conference at the Chancellor's palace attended by three hundred representative spokesmen from the Ruhr and Rhineland, at which it was unanimously agreed that further opposition to the Franco-Belgian occupation was futile and that passive resistance must be abandoned.

Only on one point was there a difference of opinion, and this concerned the advisability of entering into direct negotiations with France.

The conference was attended by the representatives of all the political parties, labor organizations, industrialists, civic bodies and governmental and municipal officials connected with the German posts, telegraphs and railway administrations in the occupied zones.

The concurring sentiment at today's conference will be communicated to the Premiers of the Federated States tomorrow. Final official action will be decided upon by the Cabinet Wednesday.

This, it is believed, will comprise ratification of the non-official opinion gathered by the Chancellor in the course of his conferences and personal canvass of the situation and will be expressed in a brief, but emphatic, governmental declaration to the Reichstag. The date for its presentation has not yet been fixed, but it is expected that Friday will be selected.

The participants in the conference today, without exception, supported the Government's attitude and promised Chancellor Stresemann their aid in the Government's impending procedure.

Even the delegates from the German Nationalist Party of the Ruhr and the Rhineland conceded the hopelessness of further passive resistance, but opposed formal negotiations with France or a signed capitulation.

Plain Talk at Conference.

It was a motley but serious-minded crowd of men, representing many professions, callings and political beliefs that occupied the historic assembly room in the Chancellor's palace which was the scene of the Berlin Congress in 1876. Hugo Stinnes, Fritz Thyssen and other industrial magnates sat with labor leaders, railway officials and mine foremen, and the talk between them was plain and to the point.

"In the course of battle it sometimes becomes necessary to surrender or evacuate a fortress because it requires too many men, too much food and too much ammunition," observed Chancellor Stresemann in recapitulating the situation confronting his Cabinet and Germany. In order to hold the Ruhr and the Rhineland passive resistance must now be abandoned, he declared, as the nation would bleed to death in further attempts to hold out. The economic, political and patriotic folly of such procedure would definitely jeopardize the future of those territories as integral parts of the repeublic.

When several representatives of the German Nationalists ventured to suggest the possibility of holding out the Chancellor quickly asked them whether they and their party were prepared to furnish the money for such an undertaking.

"The unity and existence of the German State are at stake, and this Cabinet is determined to keep them intact," the Chancellor announced.

Dr. Stresemann said that as the Government was unable to secure amnesty for the imprisoned Germans, the unmolested return of those who had been deported and the restoration of German prerogatives within the Ruhr and Rhineland through advance negotiations with the occupying forces, continuation of passive resistance became purposeless and inimical to the internal and foreign situation. The Government's immediate efforts, he declared, would be directed toward obtaining the release of prisoners and residential rights for evicted officials and their families.

Terms to Be Discussed Later.

Revolution Flames Up in All Bulgaria; Sofia Is Blockaded; King Offers to Resign

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The revolution in Bulgaria has burst into full flame and the whole country is in the hands of rebels, according to a dispatch to The Morning Post from Belgrade. The dispatch was dated today.

Sofia is blockaded, according to the dispatch, and King Boris has offered to resign, but his offer has not been accepted.

The insurgents are said to have destroyed all means of communication and the Government has lost connection with the provinces.

The situation of the capital is serious. It is blockaded in both a military and economic sense, being short of provisions and threatened with attack.

Bulgarian Communists have held up the Orient express near the Turkish frontier, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Constantinople. The despatch adds that telegraph communication is interrupted.

DEMANDS CROMWELL NAME ACCUSED MEN

Banton to Subpoena Stock Exchange Head Because of Speech to Bankers.

TOLD OF ALBANY THREATS

Exchange Menaced With Political Reprisal Unless Requests Were Granted, He Charged.

District Attorney Joab A. Banton last evening announced that he would serve a subpoena on Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the New York Stock Exchange, and require him to reveal the identity of three public officials Mr. Cromwell was credited with having declared had made threats of adverse legislation against the Exchange if certain demands by them were not complied with immediately.

Mr Cromwell's reference to the threats was made yesterday before the Clearing House Section of the American Bankers' Association at its convention in Atlantic City. In his speech Mr. Cromwell said that henceforth the officials of the Exchange would expose public officials of any kind who attempted to coerce them into granting favors in violation of the law through threats of legislation against the Exchange.

"Heretofore," he said, "the Exchange has contented itself with ignoring attacks in the public prints, with making appearances before the proper legislative committees and presenting its arguments against legislation through counsel or officers of the Exchange. Hereafter the Exchange intends to fight. We are tired of the abuse and lies which are daily hurled at the Exchange, and while we do not intend to reciprocate in kind, we do intend that every item of information in our possession which will enlighten the public concerning the men who are attacking us, concerning their methods, their purposes, their records and their objects, shall be given to the public.

Will Give the Names.

"If an officeholder stops long enough at the Grand Central Station to call up the President of the Exchange and tell him that he wants a certain thing done for some one, contrary to the rules of the Exchange, and that he wants an answer in fifteen minutes because his train leaves for Albany, where he is going 'to look into the bill aimed at the Stock Exchange,' we shall consider that threat an item of news and give the gentleman's name and his threat to the newspapers.

"If another officeholder, who has a retaining fee from a notorious bucket shop, calls us up and gives us seven minutes in which to restore the wires to that bucket shop, under threat of political reprisal at Albany, we shall give that gentleman's name and a record of the conversation to the public, with such other details as the facts may warrant.

"Again, if the author of a bill which was designed to put the Exchange out of business comes to us and asks for a retaining fee so that he may testify

PRESS FOREMEN ASK FOR A SETTLEMENT

Ready to Return if Publishers Would Drop Berry—Offer Turned Down.

NEWSPAPER SIZE DOUBLED

Sixteen Pages Today—Forged Telegrams Sent in Berry's Name Quickly Exposed.

Owing to further improved conditions in the pressrooms of the members of the New York Newspaper Publishers' Association, against whose papers an illegal strike unauthorized by the International Printing Pressmen's Union was called last Tuesday morning by New York Web Pressmen's Union 25, the newspapers of New York are today appearing in sixteen-page editions, and not the eight-page editions which have been published since last Wednesday.

The decision to publish larger newspapers with more comprehensive news and advertising was taken yesterday by the publishers at a meeting in the Waldorf. At the same time it was decided that the newspapers should continue to be published under combination headlines.

Pressmen foremen and assistant foremen recently employed by the publishers visited the various newspaper offices yesterday and requested permission to return to work under the contract signed by President George L. Berry of the International Printing Pressmen's Union and the newspaper publishers of New York City. The foremen and their assistants undertook to guarantee the conduct of the men in the pressrooms and said they would drop all their dealing with David Simons—former president of the local pressmen's union, the charter of which was revoked by the international union—on condition that the publishers would forego further relations with Mr. Berry. The foremen said also that they did not wish to return to work on cards supplied by the international union. The publishers were unanimous in their rejection of the proposal on the ground that having signed a contract with the international union they would live up to its terms.

The pressroom foremen went to the offices of the former local union in the World Building last night and reported to David Simons, leader of the pressmen, that they had been unable to make headway in their attempt to return to the pressrooms on conditions named by them.

Berry's Name Forged in Telegrams.

Mr. Berry announced yesterday that forged telegrams purporting to have been sent by him, had been deposited at the office of the Western Union Telegraph Company, 119 Broadway, late Saturday night, with instructions to send them to local unions of web pressmen in thirty-two cities. The forged telegrams were identical in content and contained the following message: "Pay no attention to previous telegrams sent. Send no men. Berry." An investigation of the case is being made by the Western Union Telegraph Company.

[illegible] of abandoning passive resistance as to be left to subsequent negotiations with the occupying powers.

The Chancellor urged the employers to resume operations at their plants and mines immediately and advocated uniformity in this so as to avoid independent action, which might be detrimental to the restoration of economic normalcy in the Ruhr and Rhineland.

No announcement was forthcoming tonight regarding the method which the Stresemann Government will employ to apprise the occupying powers of its decision to call off passive resistance.

The Chancellor may confine himself to a brief declaration in the Reichstag, which would also be considered as notification to the outside world that the Government had reached its decision despite failure to secure in advance any concession from France or Belgium, thereby virtually making an unconditional surrender.

There was a rumor in diplomatic circles tonight that a third power had offered the Government its good offices in the direction of vouchsafing it a formal adjustment of the Ruhr conflict which would not impose humiliating conditions in the nature of a signed capitulation or formal admission of responsibility for its policy of passive resistance.

The first indication of the Government's resolve came late this evening when the Berlin newspapers got a cautiously worded communiqué, in which the significant decision was buried in a cursory report of today's discussions with the representatives of the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

Measures to Foil Uprisings.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—President Ebert, according to a Central News dispatch from Berlin, had a long consultation with Gustave Noske, the Chief of Police, tonight and energetic measures were discussed and will be submitted to a conference of the Federal Premiers tomorrow.

The correspondent says it is reported that should the Bavarian Nationalists make trouble, the Cabinet will resign, and Noske will be appointed dictator.

Official Statement of Results.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—The Government's proclamation that it is giving up the passive resistance in the Ruhr, as accepted tonight by the Rhineland and Ruhr political chiefs and industrialists and the labor unions, will appear Wednesday night, signed by President Ebert and Chancellor Stresemann.

A note will be sent to France and Belgium informing them that the resistance is ended.

The official statement was as follows:

"A conference was held between the Cabinet and representatives of the occupied zone. Chancellor Stresemann explained the financial situation. The Government and people could not longer bear a continuation of the Ruhr credits. He declared the efforts of the Government with the former enemy States had failed to obtain a release of prisoners, a return of exiles and a restoration of Germany's sovereignty in the Rhineland. Therefore, a continuation of the resistance could lead to no success toward bettering the political situation.

"The representatives of all the parties, excepting the Nationalists, agreed that the resistance must be given up, owing to the fact that it was draining the nation. The Chancellor declared that the Government takes full responsibility for giving up the resistance.

"In the afternoon a conference was held between the representatives of industry and the workers. The Chancellor informed them of the necessity of giving up. Not one objected. The representatives discussed ways and means for giving up. A unanimous agreement was reached that work would be resumed immediately and individual action by certain parties restrained. Chancellor Stresemann repeated his intentions of working for his five points."

A wild rumor is current in Berlin tonight that General von Ludendorff has asked 40,000 troops to follow him to Berlin.

The War Minister, however, had sent the Bavarian troops for Autumn manoeuvres into Würtenburg. These troops were suspected, and Bavaria is held by Saxons, who are largely anti-monarchist.

In Entente circles there is considerable talk of General von Seeckt, army commander, assuming military dictatorship should civil war break out.

GERMAN RIOTS CONTINUE.

Three Men Killed and Many Wounded in Saxon Towns.

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Business was almost at a standstill today on the Boerse, which reacted to the alarmist rumors of an impending national popular uprising against capitulation in the Ruhr struggle and to equally alarmist reports that capitulation would be the signal for Bavaria to separate from the Reich and the Rhinelands to break loose.

Dresden, the scene of almost daily disorders, had one man killed and several wounded this morning when 200 "radical unemployed" demonstrated through the principal streets, intimidating the shopkeepers, who closed up till the mob encountered the police and was dispersed, its leader long a picturesque demagogue in Dresden, being shot. The police reported tonight that they were masters of the situation.

Another clash took place in Saxony at the small town of Wiederitsch, close to the Prussian border, when members of the illegal reactionary combat organization, calling itself the Steel Helmet, held a flag rally and were met by Red "proletarian" combat groups. The fight raged over the border on to Prussian soil and back. Six Reds and five Steel Helmeters were wounded, two of the latter mortally.

Police and ambulances were rushed to the battlefield from Leipsic.

There has been surprisingly little bloodshed in Bavaria considering the possibilities for trouble. A lively nocturnal shooting affray took place at Munich between members of the Oberland Combat Association and radicals, but only one man was wounded. Of chief interest is the fact that the Bavarian Security Police sided with the reactionaries against the radicals.

A two weeks' ban has been placed on the Rote Rahne (the Red Flag) and two of its subsidiary sheets by the Chief of Police of Berlin. He is believed to have acted under orders of the Central Government. The Communist organ has been violently assailing the Government since its reappearance from an enforced vacation a week ago.

The order of suppression closely follows the discovery and confiscation by the police of twenty machine guns, considerable quantities of ammunition and small arms in premises in the eastern section of the city tenanted by Communists, who pretended to be unaware of the nature and contents of wooden cases found in their basements.

The police believe the radicals are perfecting their fighting units in Berlin. They call attention to the fact that in the case of the present seizure the machine guns were stored at one point, while ammunition confiscated was for small arms which were concealed elsewhere.

Serious Talk by Stresemann.

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—A momentous conference at which the abandonment of passive resistance was approved, and which lasted for nearly four hours, was held at the Chancellor's Palace at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, more than 300 delegates representing all interests in the Ruhr and Rhineland being present.

Those at the meeting this evening included all members of the Reichstag and Prussian Parliament from the occupied areas, all the regional Prefects, the Burgomasters of the principal cities, representatives of officials, civil servants, Government employes and workers, labor unions, trades, professions and the industrialists, including Hugo Stinnes.

The Chancellor opened the proceedings with a clean-cut statement of the physical and financial impossibility of continuing passive resistance and the imperativeness of giving it up. He elaborated his latest thesis that abandonment of passive resistance did not mean capitulation nor abject or complete surrender entailing loss of prestige. On the contrary, Germany would continue to fight for the Ruhr and Rhineland with other means.

He complained that neither the present nor any other Government could capitulate unconditionally and that no German Government could sit at a conference or negotiation table with the French or sign any kind of compact as long as those punished for passive resistance continued to be jailed or expelled, nor could any German Government give up one foot of German soil or abandon the independence of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

The Socialist representatives from the Ruhr and Rhineland raised the question about rumored impending putsches and coups. Dr. Stresemann answered that he was fully aware of the gravity of the situation and that he had taken the strongest action to frustrate any uprisings.

"The need of the hour is to preserve Germany's very existence and German unity. I will do all in my power as long as I am Chancellor. My ministers and I know we are in a storm-tossed boat likely to hit the rocks, but as long as the boat floats we will do our utmost to steady it."

During the morning the Chancellor had received the inner ring of Ruhr industrialists, headed by Stinnes. The industrialists have been subjected to bitter popular criticism for alleged misuse of Ruhr resistance funds. It has even been charged that they "stabbed resistance in the back" by using Reichsbank credits for profitable speculations in foreign exchange while themselves making no financial or other sacrifices for resistance.

Stinnes and his fellow industrialists submitted elaborate reports and statistics showing how they had actually spent the Ruhr resistance credits funds, and wanted these made public.

The Chancellor told them that discussion of how they had employed the Ruhr credits was "highly inopportune" at this time, since it would only furnish facts and figures about Ruhr funds to the enemy.

Paris Expectant on Berlin Action.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—It is expected in Paris that the Berlin Government will announce in the Reichstag Wednesday its decision to revoke the Ruhr resistance orders despite the pressure being brought upon Chancellor Stresemann in Nationalist quarters to continue the fight. In this event the Reichstag session will open the way for new proposals by Berlin to Paris and Brussels, which in turn will communicate them to the other allies and the Reparation Commission.

A conference with the Germans would then depend on the attitude of the Allies towards the new offers. To get French consideration these offers must be based on continued occupation of the Ruhr, but it is possible that the French will not hold out for Ruhr occupation until final payment of all reparations.

In Paris official quarters it is said that whether the Germans yield Wednesday is not of enormous importance, since they must do so sooner or later, and France can wait as long as is necessary "and a quarter of an hour longer."

FREE RHINELAND RECRUITS.

Smeets's Followers at Mayence to Join Rhineland Republican Party.

MAYENCE, Sept. 24.—Followers of Joseph Smeets, the German Separatist leader, at a meeting here today adopted a resolution in favor of joining the Rhineland Republican Party and advocating an independent Rhineland.

Smeets has been a strong advocate of the secession of the Rhineland from Germany for several years. The resolution adopted by the meeting at Mayence would appear to indicate that his forces favored joining those under Dr. H. A. Dorten, who has headed the Republican movement since 1919, when he assumed the title "President of the Rhine Republic." Dorten's "government" crumbled when France and the other interested powers refused recognition.

REDS FIGHT NATIONALISTS.

Two Persons Killed and 11 Wounded in Clash Near Leipsic.

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Two persons are reported to have been killed and eleven wounded in a clash between Nationalists and Communists in the vicinity of Leipsic Sunday.

Despite the police ban upon such demonstrations, the members of the German Nationalist association, the Steel Helmet, after holding a meeting at Wiederitzsch, near Leipsic, are said to have attempted to march in close formation to Podelwitz.

A collision with the Communists occurred on the march, causing the casualties reported, and ending only with the arrival of police reinforcements.

WOMAN IMPOSTOR ON ELECTION BOARD

Passes Herself Off as Another at Pittsburgh But Is Detected and Ousted.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24.—Pittsburgh is noted for the devious ways in which her male politicians "get results," but it remained for Mrs. Anna Kuster of Manton, an adherent of the Magee-Oliver-Flinn wing of the Republican Party here, to show her male cohorts a way to get "on the inside." But for the timely memory of a spectator she would have put over her little scheme to sit on the Returning Board that will canvass the returns of the late primary—one of the most hotly fought in the history of Western Pennsylvania.

The Returning Board was organized Friday, when a woman presented herself to Judges Shafer and Douglas as Mrs. Ida Spinneweber, named in the appointments, signed her name to the paper as Ida Spinneweber and took oath to serve on the board.

Later Thomas D. Jones, an Alderman of the Eighteenth Ward, who knows Mrs. Spinneweber, noticed Mrs. Kuster sitting on the board. Jones informed the Judges of the court that Mrs. Kuster had substituted herself for Mrs. Spinneweber and taken the oath of office.

For a time the woman was dumb to the questioning of the Judges, but she finally admitted that she was Mrs. Kuster. She was quickly relieved from duty and another woman appointed.

Charges among politicians of framing the substitution of one woman for another for some ulterior purpose are flying thick and fast, but as neither of the female politicians will utter a word, little has been learned as to the real reason for Mrs. Kuster going so far as to perjure herself in her effort to become a member of the Returning Board.

EX-GOV. MILLER RETURNS.

Says That He Found Conditions Improving in Europe.

According to ex-Governor Nathan L. Miller, who arrived yesterday with his family from Liverpool on the Cunarder Franconia, there were not great evidences of distress in the industrial districts in England. He attributed the lack of suffering among the unemployed to the doles given by the Government, which were sufficient to prevent actual hardship.

"Events seem at least to be progressing toward improvement on the Continent," he said.

"Of course, so long as there is uncertainty conditions are bound to be unsettled."

At 4:30 P. M. on Thursday, Sept. 20, the officers and crew of the Franconia were mustered on deck and stood at attention while Bishop T. F. Davies of Western Massachusetts read the burial service over the ashes of the late Captain T. A. Mathieson, R. N. R., who died in England through injuries received in the war, and left a request that his body should be cremated and the ashes buried in mid-Atlantic.

Another passenger was Dr. Edmund Heelan, Bishop of Sioux City, Iowa, who returned after spending six weeks in Ireland. Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer, with her two sons Ralph Jr. and Seward Pulitzer, also arrived on the Franconia. The liner was delayed several hours by fog, the officers said.

GIRL'S SLAYER LEFT FINGERPRINT CLUE

Experts to Examine Plank Found Near Emma Dickson's Body in Jersey Swamp.

POLICE SUSPICIONS FIXED

Evidence, They Say, Points to One Man—Prosecutor Questions Girl's Father.

Special to The New York Times.

MILLVILLE, N. J., Sept. 24.—The imprint of a blood-stained finger on a plank is the chief clue which the Cumberland County authorities have to the slayer of Emma Dickson, the 15-year-old girl whose body was found in a swamp six miles from here last Saturday morning.

County Detective Frank J. Lore made a request last night to the Police Departments of Philadelphia and New York for fingerprint experts to examine the plank, which is about six feet long and six inches wide. The police are investigating two places from which it may have come. Detective Lore said yesterday that there was no doubt that the girl's body was carried to the spot where it was found. The Port Elizabeth Road, he pointed out, is the main thoroughfare from Philadelphia to Cape May, and carried considerable traffic at all hours of the day and night.

Girl's Father Questioned.

County Prosecutor Roscoe C. Ward of Bridgeton visited the home of Gardener Thompson Dickson, the girl's father, late today and he questioned Dickson for nearly two hours about the movements of his daughter on Sept. 13, the day on which she disappeared. After the interview the Prosecutor said:

"There is one point that has not been cleared up fully. I am not at liberty to say what it is, but this much I will say: It may be necessary to obtain an order for the exhumation of the body in order to secure further medical evidence."

Authorities have learned that on the day before she disappeared the young girl mailed at Bricksboro four postal cards to as many different men. Their names are known.

The Cumberland County Grand Jury meets tomorrow at Bridgeton to receive such evidence as County Detective Lore has ready.

It was learned today that the police were seeking a man who took the Dickson girl out in his automobile on the day she disappeared. She was seen by a schoolmate who recognized Emma, but did not know the man who was driving the car. This girl was taken to Bricksboro today to see if she could identify either of two men, but neither answered the description.

The police are now satisfied that the girl was killed the night she disappeared and quote a resident of Port Elizabeth, who passed the spot where the body was found about 11:15 that night, that he had seen a man near there standing behind a touring car.

Prosecutor Ward said last night that he is far from satisfied with his questioning of Dickson. The police say that Emma's friends resent the father's criticisms of her conduct. They say that Emma wanted to become an evangelist and confided her hopes of future missionary work, and that it was this ambition which led her to accept the position as organist at the Nazareth Church.

By tracing the girl's movements on the day of her disappearance the police learned that she attended her physical culture class here, which she left in an automobile with a man. She then took the 4:48 train for Port Elizabeth, a town less than a mile from her home. She reached her father's house about 5:30, according to Benjamin Dickson, her grandfather. She changed her clothes and prepared supper. After supper, just after 6 o'clock, she left the house, saying she was going to the grocery store of Hyson Camp, a short distance from her home, to get some milk. She is also reported to have said that she was going to the home of Irma Henderson, a quarter of a mile beyond the grocery, to leave a boudoir cap. She called at the grocer's for the milk, but was never seen by the Hendersons.

Detective Lore allowed newspapermen to examine a Durant hub cap which was found near the body. Lore agreed that it was improbable that the hub cap could have been used effectively as a blackjack. "Whoever killed her," Lore said, "wanted to be sure she was dead. He did not take any chances."

Frank Tribbett, a farmer living not far from the Dickson home, was questioned regarding a hub cap reported lost on his car, but no details were furnished by the authorities. Other clues the investigators are running down include the report of a Port Elizabeth girl that Emma Dickson had told her a married man was making advances, and the discovery that a young Belmont, N. J., farmer was a former admirer of the slain girl. Detectives appeared hopeful that an arrest might be made tomorrow and let it be known that suspicion had narrowed down to one person.

WILL SEEK TO INDICT STOKES AND NUGENT

Chicago Prosecutor to Lay Before Grand Jury Alleged Confession of Perjury.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Grand Jury action against W. E. D. Stokes of New York and his attorney, Dan Nugent, also of New York, on charges of buying perjured testimony in the former's divorce suit, loomed today as a consequence of confessions obtained last night by Assistant State's Attorney Wharton from six negroes that they signed affidavits blackening Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes's character and branding her as a former inmate of the Everleigh Club.

The confessions were obtained by Mr. Wharton in a midnight session in his office, at which Mrs. Stokes, her attorney, Charles E. Erbstein, and W. C. Dannenberg, an investigator, were present.

When they had signed the statements Mr. Wharton, as a double check, had Mrs. Stokes walk up and down before them and asked them if she was the woman they knew as a resident in the levee district.

All were unable to identify her.

"I believe that a serious crime has been committed," said Mr. Wharton. "I intend to lay the matter before my superior, Mr. Crowe, with the recommendation that it be taken before the Grand Jury at once.

"I firmly believe Stokes and Nugent are the instigators of this case. In all probability I shall seek their indictment."

The negroes who made the alleged confessions, all of whom were underworld characters, according to Mr. Wharton, are Emma Dixon, former bookkeeper for the Everleigh Club; John Moore, a former porter at the Beaux Arts Club; Nillie Findich, May Winters, Frank Hulbert and a man named Charles.

Papers seized in the possession of Joe Burner, a negro, employed by a furniture company, disclose, according to the prosecutor, that Burner had been paid $650 to make a perjured affidavit.

The information in the possession of the State's Attorney is that Burner was approached by Nugent in August. Nugent at that time, it was learned, was staying at the Hotel La Salle under the name of Dan Jones.

COOLIDGE PRAISES PRESS.

Hails Its Great Service in Message to Credit Bureau.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—A tribute to the power of the press and a reminder of its high responsibility are given by President Coolidge in a letter to Stanley Clague, managing director of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, which was made public today. The letter is in reply to an invitation to attend the dinner of the annual convention of the Audit Bureau at Chicago on Oct. 17.

The President, after expressing regret that a decision to accept no public speaking engagements this year prevented him from attending, says:

"It is perfectly apparent that you will have a magnificent audience, and that it will undoubtedly be an historic occasion. Whatever has to do with the collection and transmission of information to the public is of the highest importance. It is gratifying to know that this great service to America is in the hands of men of ability and patriotism.

"There is a universal desire to serve the public in this capacity, not only interestingly but candidly and helpfully. The fundamental institutions of our Government scarcely ever fail to receive cordial support. The moral standards of society are strengthened and the intellectual vigor of the nation is increased and quickened by your constant efforts."

PRESS FOREMEN ASK FOR A SETTLEMENT

grams were received, apprised Mr. Berry and the Board of Directors of the international union of the situation. The international union officials were assured that the locals of the union were with them in the fight to maintain the integrity of contract in New York.

Mr. Berry's reply to the forged telegrams was to send out the following message to seventy-five local unions of pressmen:

New York, 11 A. M., Sept. 24, 1923.

The international union calls upon your local to send men to New York immediately. Draw upon local Treasurer or take such means as may be necessary to get them here. Expenses and compensation for lost time are guaranteed by the international union. Offices have been established at 150 Nassau Street, in Rooms 614-618 on the sixth floor, New York City. Report by telegram number of men en route and when they are expected to arrive. There must be no delay in meeting the situation.

The Board of Directors is compelled to draft all available newspaper pressmen to respond to this call in order to uphold the integrity of our organization internationally, to conserve the newspaper business in New York and to accord simple justice to the public. No trades unionists can be ashamed of their conduct in responding to this call. It is clearly an obligation and the situation is deserving of an administration of courage that we cannot afford to disregard.

Information has reached me that some one under the name of Berry is wiring to local unions not to send men. Such telegrams are forgeries. We want men. Wire Rooms 614 to 618, 150 Nassau Street, New York City.
GEORGE L. BERRY.

Boys Ran Local Union, Berry Says.

Mr. Berry made the following statement yesterday:

"It is my judgment that 85, if not 95, per cent. of the web pressmen of New York City are as clean as a hound's tooth and as good citizens as could be found in America.

"The only indictment against them is that they have permitted the construction of a machine that is destructive and irresponsible. They have allowed this to occur as a result of their failure to participate in the conduct of their organization and by their failure to attend meetings; this is best exemplified in the fact that 300 men, 175 of whom were juniors, voted this strike that put 2,200 men on the street.

"The defective machinery to which I make reference presents itself in the juniors of this organization running the institution, which is different from any organization of newspaper web pressmen in America."

Some of the paper handlers, members of Paper Handlers and Sheet Straighteners' Local 1, who struck in sympathy with the pressmen, but whose union adopted a resolution on Sunday evening to return to work at once, refused for several hours yesterday to obey the order. Mr. Berry, whose organization has jurisdiction over the local union of paper handlers, informed Thomas P. Gill, President of the local union, that if the men did not live up to their contract they would find themselves in the same position as the members of Local 25 of the pressmen, whose charter has been revoked. The men went back to work.

No Appeal Made to Clergy.

As far as could be learned yesterday, the committee appointed by the pressmen on Sunday did not visit Archbishop Hayes, Bishop Manning or Bishop Molloy of Brooklyn yesterday. The fourth clergyman, Rabbi J. L. Magnes, on whom it was announced the committee would call, is in Palestine.

The offices of the International Union in Rooms 614 to 618 at 150 Nassau Street were in charge of international officials yesterday. The work of moving in furniture and arranging the telephones was completed, and pressmen from other cities and local pressmen desiring to return to work under the new contract are being asked to appear at the offices today for their International Union cards. Pressmen will not be employed without first presenting these cards.

Standing Pat, Simons Insists.

A meeting of local pressmen was held at Beethoven Hall yesterday. David Simons, former President of the defunct local, appeared for a few minutes and spoke briefly. Afterward he denied that pressmen from other cities had begun to come to New York and that some were on their way here. "Two or three may possibly have come, but no more," he added. "The battle is still on."

He was asked if he meant that this was "a fight to the finish."

"Well, you can say we are standing pat," he replied. "You never can tell what may happen."

James Kelly, who was one of the speakers at the meeting, announced that the pressmen would attempt to obtain the sympathy of other unions, but declared that no attempt would be made to induce sympathetic strikes here or in other cities. It was said, however that members of the Garment Workers' Union expressed sympathy for the strikers at the meeting.

A committee of former service men was appointed to visit the Employment Bureau of the American Legion with a request that the agencies refuse to send applicants for work as pressmen to the local newspaper offices.

It was said that the striking pressmen were planning to hold a parade, possibly today, if they could get a permit from the Police Department.

Killing of Davis Under Inquiry.

Fifteen employes in the mailroom of The American were called yesterday before Captain Arthur Carey, in charge of the homicide squad, and questioned about the death of George Davis, 50 years old, the "fly boy" who was blackjacked in the mailroom on Saturday night. He died from his injury several hours later.

The employes were permitted to go after having been under examination several hours. Six of the men said they were within ten or fifteen feet of Davis when he was struck on the head, but asserted that they did not see the murderer. They told Captain Carey that their backs were turned to Davis and that they did not see anybody run from the room. The police have the name of a man seen running from the scene after the assault.

The fifteen were told to appear at the District Attorney's office this morning for further questioning.

Max Paxter, a driver, of 871 Intervale Avenue, Bronx, employed by a morning newspaper, reported yesterday that four men stopped his wagon in Washington Street, near Montgomery Street, Jersey City, and ordered him to drive to the Morris Canal, where they dumped his load of 6,000 newspapers into the water. Patrolman Moran of Jersey City salvaged 1,000 newspapers and Paxter took them back to New York.

GOVERNORS PRESS RAIL CONSOLIDATION

But New England Executives, Testifying Before I. C. C., Are Not Agreed on Plans.

FEW FOR TRUNK LINE IDEA

Storrow Proposal for Union of Most New England Roads Favored at Boston Session.

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—Three members of the Interstate Commerce Commission conducted a hearing here today on the proposed consolidation of New England railroads. In addition to railroad officials, representatives were present to give the views of State and city Chambers of Commerce and other commercial organizations.

The discussion revolved around the report recently submitted to the Governors of the New England States by the Joint New England Railroad Committee, favoring a consolidation into a single system of the New England railroads with the exception of the Boston & Albany, the Central Vermont and the New England lines of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific. The report also submitted plans for rehabilitation of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Boston & Maine. The Maine and New Hampshire members of the committee opposed any form of consolidation at present.

The Commissioners present today were Henry Hall, Frederick I. Cox and Joseph B. Eastman, with Thomas P. Healey as examiner. The hearing was attended by Governors Cox of Massachusetts, Flynn of Rhode Island, Brown of New Hampshire and Templeton of Connecticut, President James H. Hustis of the Boston & Maine Railroad and James J. Storrow, Chairman of the Joint New England Railroad Committee.

In formally presenting the joint committee's report Governor Cox said:

"The people of this State are vitally interested in this question. The people feel that their interests will be better served by a consolidation of New England lines than by the formation of relations with the outside trunk lines. We ought to have a system sympathetic to our needs and directed by our own men."

Governor Flynn said Rhode Island was definitely in favor of a New England consolidation and not for trunk line consolidation.

Governor Brown referred to the dissenting report made by the New Hampshire members of the joint committee, and continued:

"New Hampshire people want adequate and efficient service. No structure unless financially sound can give such service."

"Do not consider trunk line consolidation," said Governor Templeton of Connecticut. "It means higher cost of transportation. The freight shipper can get a better figure if he has the choice of shipping lines. New England men have the brains and the money and can take care of themselves."

H. C. Comings of Vermont, representing Governor Proctor, said the Governor favored the committee report and added that the industries of Vermont were "pretty much behind him in his stand."

Commissioner Hall read a letter from Governor Baxter of Maine, in which he said:

"The Storrow committee findings are impartial. I have not yet determined what plan of consolidation would be to the best interests of our State."

E. O. Goss of Waterbury said the 300 members of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut were unalterably opposed to any trunk line consolidation. Several other Connecticut men corroborated Mr. Goss.

Declaration that the New Haven road must be financed by New England was made by Ralph L. French of Thomaston, Conn., who thought it could not be done under a trunk line merger.

DAWES MAY OPPOSE SMALL.

Illinois Republicans Talk of Him as Compromise Candidate.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Charles G. Dawes may become a compromise candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Illinois against Len Small.

The talk in local political circles today was that if the Republican leaders decide a new deal is demanded, that such a man as Dawes should be the candidate.

have attempted to rely upon the naked force of armies and navies, conquering by the might of the sword. But these forces are not the ultimate rulers of mankind. They are necessary for security, as police and criminal courts, and bolts and bars are necessary. They are adjuncts of peace. But, they are negative forces. They do not create, they resist. They are not the ultimate force in the world. They do not make the final determinations among men. Over them all is a higher power.

"Mankind has not yet, cannot yet, discard the use of these forces. It is significant, however, that the great nations have at last agreed upon their limitation. But it is even more significant that civilization is coming to rely more and more upon moral force.

"It is because the Red Cross has been a practical application of that principle that it has been such a tremendous success. It makes its appeal for support directly to the conscience of mankind. It does not attempt to function through the direct action of organized government. It does not have in it any element of compulsion. It is the voluntary offering of the people themselves. Whenever and wherever an emergency has resulted in human suffering, to the extent of its ability it administers whatever may be necessary for temporary relief.

Sees Need for Practical Idealism.

"It is in this direction that there lies the hope of real progress. The ancient ideals of human brotherhood, of service, the application of the golden rule, of peace on earth and good-will toward men are idle dreams, unless they can be translated into practical action. It is necessary, on the one hand, to avoid the illusions of the visionaries, and on the other hand the indifference of the selfish. Each individual and each nation owe their first duty to themselves. Beyond that, there is the obligation of the strong to serve the weak, to administer such service in a way that will not destroy or degrade by making mendicants, but will restore and strengthen by making character. It is the policy which helps in an emergency, but realizes that, finally, each individual and each nation must work out their own destiny.

"The constant need of civilization is for a practical idealism of this kind. It does not attempt to perform the impossible. It does not seek to reform merely by an act of legislation, thinking that it can unload its burden on the Government and be relieved from further effort. It does not undertake to assume responsibility for all humanity. But it realizes that redemption comes only through sacrifice. When a crisis arises, it does not hesitate to go out and make whatever sacrifice is necessary to master the occasion.

"It is this kind of practical idealism that is represented in the history of our country, a deep faith in spiritual things, tempered by a hard common sense adapted to the needs of this world. It has been illustrated in the character of the men who planted colonies in the wilderness and raised up great states around the church and the schoolhouse; who bought their independence with their blood and cast out slavery by the sacrifice of their bravest sons; who offered their lives to give more freedom to oppressed peoples; and who went to the rescue of Europe with their treasure and their men when their own liberty and the liberty of the world was in peril, but when the victory was secure, retired from the field unencumbered by spoils, independent, unattached and unbought, still continuing to contribute lavishly to the relief of the stricken and destitute of the Old World; and who, but recently being asked for five million dollars, immediately gave about twice that amount for the afflicted people of Japan. Such has been the moral purpose that has marked the conduct of our country up to the present hour. The American people have never adopted and are not likely to adopt any other course.

Among the World's Hopeful Things.

"A contemplation of these principles and the works which they have wrought both in our country and among the other nations—for this spirit is worldwide—is helpful and reassuring. They are among the convincing evidences that justify our faith in mankind. They reveal the fundamental strength of civilization. They demonstrate the supremacy of the spiritual life.

"Here we behold the race struggling up through barbarism, overcoming ignorance, establishing order, instituting government, painfully working out their own destiny under free institutions, acknowledging and accepting the truths of religion, gradually casting aside selfishness, endowing the great charities which heal the body, inform the mind, and minister to the soul, making on every hand unending sacrifices that the truth may be supreme. Such is the strength of the influence, of which this organization is one of the representatives. It is inconceivable that it could have come thus far only to retreat, that it could have succeeded up to the present time only to fail.

"These are the encouraging, the hopeful things of the world. While it is necessary to admit that progress has been slow, that there have been and undoubtedly will be, many disheartening failures, I believe the conclusion to be inescapable that there is every warrant for confidence. The encouraging feature of these results lies in the fact that they come from the voluntary actions of the people. They are not mandates from privilege. They are not imposed from without; they arise from within, they disclose the conquering, the victorious struggle of a higher nature. They do not represent a law of man, they reveal a law of God.

"It is for these reasons that I take a large satisfaction in extending a welcome to this convention and acting as its presiding officer. I respect it for what it has done and what it is. I am mindful of its purpose and its origin. This organization had its beginnings in the day of Abraham Lincoln. It is representative of the dominant influences of his time. It partakes of his spirit. It shows the way to a larger freedom. Our country could secure no higher commendation, no greater place in history, than to have it correctly said that the Red Cross is truly American."

Japanese Ambassador Speaks.

Ambassador Hanihara, who received a welcome second in cordiality only to that accorded the President, referred to the fact that the Washington conference had been held in Continental Hall, where the Red Cross is now in session. From the standpoint of Japan, the greatest benefit of that conference was, he added, that it had afforded Japan the opportunity to demonstrate to the United States and the other great powers the sincerity of Japan's desire for peace.

"And now I find myself here again in different circumstances," he said. "It is absolutely impossible for me to express to you, so that you will fully understand, the depth of my feeling in facing you, the active representatives of the Red Cross. For events have transpired that may well prove to be more far-reaching in their importance than even the Washington treaties.

"The metropolitan area of Japan was torn to shreds by the forces of nature. The first flash of that dreadful news aroused in your country a universal manifestation of genuine human sympathy. The whole country united in a noble movement of generosity which dispatched, through the splendid organization that you represent, thousands of tons of food and millions of dollars in money and supplies to my destitute and homeless countrymen. It was such unmistakable evidence of the great hearted and open handed sympathy of America that it could not be misunderstood. In the very moment of our sorest need you did not fail us.

"Now I want to point out to you what I believe will be the results of this action of yours.

"Of course Japan will be grateful. Never—for we have long memories in my country—never shall we forget your sympathy in this hour of our national distress. But in remembering your sympathy so genuine and generous, we shall lose all thought of 'American aggressiveness in the Far East.' It will henceforth be difficult, indeed, for professional jingoes to terrorize an ignorant public opinion to the point where it will countenance policies of military aggrandizement, on the ground of preparedness against fancied American threats. The natural reaction of a Japanese to the mention of America will be a thrill of gratitude and warm friendliness.

Says Earthquake Aids Peace.

"Thus what seemed at first to be an unmitigated and horrible catastrophe is likely to leave—in spite of the awful toll of death and bereavement—for Japan at least, one bright spot. The earthquake is in a sense a supplement to the Washington conference. The conference and its consequences showed Japan's sincerity to America; the earthquake revealed to Japan the unstrained quality of the mercy in America's heart. So Japan will now proceed to the work of rehabilitation with reinforced hope, confidence, courage and determination. If she fails to give you the satisfaction that you have helped those who help themselves, no one is to be blamed but herself.

"I can only say, Judge Payne and ladies and gentlemen of the Red Cross, with complete understanding of the inadequacy of my expression, that it is with a full heart that I welcome this opportunity to thank you, on behalf of my Emperor, my Government and the whole nation of Japan, and to repeat that we shall not forget."

Chairman Payne recounted the work of the Red Cross during the last year. Citing the huge oversubscription of the Japanese Relief Fund, he said that the response to that appeal makes every member of the Red Cross and every friend of the Red Cross proud of his own country. The delegates applauded when he stated that the original appeal for $5,000,000 for Japanese relief had been nearly doubled.

A message from Ambassador Woods at Tokio was read by Judge Payne, reporting tremendous devastation in the earthquake zone, the courage of the Japanese people in immediately setting forth to reconstruct on a grand scale, and their deep and genuine appreciation of the practical help given by America through the Red Cross.

Others who addressed the opening sessions of the convention included Admiral E. W. Eberle, the Chief of Naval Operations; Dr. L. S. Rowe, Director of the Pan American Union, General Frank T. Hines, Director of the Veterans' Bureau; and Judge Hubert Utterback of Des Moines.

The Red Cross fund for Japanese relief took another upward leap today and when final returns from the seven divisions of the country were in it had reached $9,102,100. The Central and Southwestern Divisions were responsible for the increase of nearly $200,000 over the figure of Saturday.

The purchasing officer of the organization was authorized by the Executive Committee this afternoon to place orders immediately for approximately $3,000,000 worth of clothing and other commodities for the relief of the earthquake victims. This action followed the receipt of an urgent request from Japanese authorities.

The Cat and the Fox

The fox was cunning. He had a thousand tricks to avoid danger. He vaunted his skill before the cat, who had but one—to climb a tree.

Just then the hunting pack appeared and poor Reynard was torn to pieces before he could get his tricks to working. The cat was safe in the tree top.

AN investment of $100 monthly in 5½% Prudence-Bonds, with the interest re-invested at the same rate in $100 units, will result in an accumulation of $21,500 in 12½ years, which will yield, almost exactly, an income of $100 a month. No Rolls-Royce has ever worn out

THE man who has driven many different cars, most readily recognizes Rolls-Royce superiority of driving comfort. From his experience with many cars one Rolls-Royce owner-driver writes, "My Rolls-Royce is so much easier to operate than any car I have owned that there is no comparison. It requires no attention that I am not competent to give. It steers without apparent effort, brakes perfectly and rides as no other car I have ever ridden in. After she had driven it several hundred miles it was my wife's opinion that the trip was not an effort but a rest." . . . This testimony bespeaks the result of Rolls-Royce methods. It demonstrates that simplicity of operation and perfect riding comfort are the direct result of perfect building. Considered as a guarantee of complete and uninterrupted motor car luxury Rolls-Royce is a wise selection. Its unequaled length of life proves it to be the soundest of motor car investments.

ATTACKS OUR STAND ON TRAFFIC IN ARMS

Norwegian Delegate at Geneva Puts on America the Blame for Future Bloodshed.

ARTICLE X IS INTERPRETED

League Commission Favors Letting Each Nation Fix Degree of Its Armed Aid to Others.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 24.—The American State Department came in for some severe criticism before the Disarmament Commission of the League of Nations this evening because of its refusal to ratify the St. Germain convention for the control of the traffic in arms. After three years' delay the State Department has at last replied definitely to the League that the United States will not ratify the convention and has given reasons which are not considered here as either serious or satisfactory.

The reading of the reply, said M. Lange of Norway, left the commission with a sense of melancholy. It was not because she was not a member of the League that America had refused, but for other reasons, which did not appear to him by any means sufficient, and he thought that the commission and the League ought to declare as definitely as possible that if this attempt to eliminate a possible source of future strife and bloodshed had failed it was not the fault of the League.

Another Invitation to Washington.

Another attempt will be made by the commission to draft a convention which may be acceptable to the United States as well as all other States, and an invitation will be sent to the United States Government to appoint representatives to co-operate with the temporary mixed commission charged with the work of preparing such a draft convention.

Another international conference on the matter of the private manufacture of arms and munitions is suggested.

Today the committee of jurists appointed by the Council to find a formula for the submission to the World Court of questions as to the competence of the Council started its work. The progress made is said to have been satisfactory.

Signor Salandra, for Italy, refused to accept the word "territorial" in the draft of the question as to whether a country which was a member of the League had the right to take measures of coercion or reprisal against another member. He said he would consent to a general question as to whether a country had the right to make reprisals, but there must be no mention of territorial reprisals, apart from such other reprisals as the seizure of ships, because such mention would lead to the citation of the Corfu case.

In the Commission on Intellectual questions the proposal was made that the Assembly be asked to contribute to the reconstruction of Tokio University, which was destroyed by the earthquake.

Article 10 to the Fore Again.

The interpretation of Article X. of the covenant which has resulted from the discussion of the amendments proposed by Canada was laid before the Assembly today with a favorable report. This interpretation leaves to each Government the right to decide to what degree a member of the League is bound to assure the execution of its obligation to preserve the territorial integrity of a fellow member by the employment of military force. The recommendation of the Council, according to this interpretation, must be taken into consideration as of the highest importance, but the Council will itself take into account geographical and other special conditions, and in no cases can there be an assumption of the right of a country to summon military aid from other except with the free consent of the constitutional authorities of the countries appealed to. There is every indication that this interpretation of Article X. will be adopted by the Assembly, and the long discussion closed.

Arbitration Protocol Is Ready.

GENEVA, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—President Torriente of the League of Nations Assembly announced today that the protocol for compulsory arbitration of all disputes arising under commercial treaties was now open for the signature of all nations. The protocol was framed by the League commission dealing with economic and commercial matters.

The Assembly adopted a series of resolutions expressing appreciation of the work of the Economic and Financial Commission, especially in promoting the reconstruction of certain European countries, and voiced its confidence that the technical opinion and advice of the commission would in the future be placed at the disposal of Governments requesting them, as was done in the cases of Albania, Austria and the Free City of Danzig.

This was interpreted as an official expression of the Assembly's hope that the League might help reconstruct Germany.

Secretary Hughes has replied to a communication from the League, dispatched to all Governments for information concerning slavery, with the statement that slavery does not exist within the territory of the United States. The inquiry was sent out at about the time that Ethiopia applied for League membership, the idea being to obtain facts concerning possible ramifications of the alleged existence of slavery in Ethiopia. The American answer confined itself strictly to the United States, pointing out that slavery was prohibited by the Thirteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

Ethiopia's application is still in abeyance, pending her taking solemn engagements regarding the abolition of slavery.

Washington's Reasons for Refusal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The information that the United States based its refusal to ratify the St. Germain convention for the control of traffic in arms and munitions was transmitted to the Council of the League of Nations by Joseph C. Grew, Minister to Switzerland.

The American objections were in brief that the convention did not provide for a general limitation of armament, but for the creation of a system of control, which it was contended would not prevent the signatory powers from meeting their own requirements or from supplying one another with arms.

The United States was also unable to agree to the proposition whereby the contracting parties could not sell arms to States not parties to the convention, and furthermore it was said that the acceptance of the convention would call for the enactment of legislation to make it operative, and particularly for the penalties which would apply to private concerns engaged in the manufacture of arms and munitions. The position of this Government is that it cannot urge such legislation at this time.

vein was caused by the effort to throw off the influenza poisoning which spread generally through the Mayor's system during the early period of his illness. "Mayor Hylan was ill for more than a week before the infection finally centred in his lung," Dr. Comstock said.

"The term 'phlebitis' means inflammation of the vein. The term 'thrombus' is applied to the accumulation of fibres which cause the stoppage. The thrombus developed gradually, a few fibres becoming attached to the walls of the vein at first and other fibres being added."

Dr. Comstock was asked if the Mayor's system was not still throwing off the infection and if there was not danger of a similar formation in another blood vessel. He replied that there was such a danger but that he did not consider it likely to occur.

Today was Mayor and Mrs. Hylan's thirty-fourth wedding anniversary, and many congratulatory telegrams, all containing wishes for the Mayor's recovery, were received. Mrs. Hylan appeared on the veranda of their cottage with a bunch of orchids at her waist. The rest of a large bouquet, the gift of her daughter, Mrs. Sinnott, were placed in a vase in the Mayor's room.

Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert, who on Sunday became fully vested with all the powers of a duly elected Mayor, was at his office in the City Hall yesterday after returning from Saratoga where he visited Mayor Hylan. He said he found the Mayor well on the road to recovery.

"Of course," he said, "one could tell at a glance that he had been very sick, but he seemed to have held his own in a surprising manner. The Mayor realizes for the first time that he has been very sick and that he must have rest and quiet in order to recuperate completely. He seemed very glad that I had gone to see him. CHINA IS EVASIVE ON TRAIN OUTRAGE

Denies Liability for Bandits' Attack and the Kidnapping of Foreigners.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Sept. 24.—The Government's reply to the note of the powers in regard to the Lincheng train outrage, which was delivered at the legations at midday, is a highly unsatisfactory document.

Liability for damages is denied and the compensation demanded in the note is refused, although the Government of its own accord is prepared to do what it considers equitable. It is "difficult" for the Government to concur in the matter of guarantees for the future on the ground that the Lincheng outrage was not analogous to the Boxer trouble. Therefore it is inappropriate, says the reply, to invoke the 1901 protocol, as insistence might give offense to "the just sensibilities of the Chinese."

The foreign demand for reforms "coincides" with the policy of the Government, which has taken various measures which are deemed to be effective. To secure the protection of the railways a special police force is being organized, for which "foreign expert assistance" will be engaged.

In short, the Government "does not feel free to commit itself to any scheme the diplomatic body may desire to present," although it is ready on its own initiative to improve the present system of policing.

As regards the demand for the dismissal of certain officials, who shall never again be employed, the Government cannot accede to it, but it intimates its intention to inflict punishment commensurate with the degree of delinquency.

HEAR WARD'S WIFE AND MRS. PETERS

did your husband, Walter Ward, come home in the morning of May 16; that is, the night of May 15 and the early morning of May 16?"

"He came home between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning," she replied, and her tones failed to carry beyond the official stenographer. Ward shifted uneasily in his seat.

"Between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning?" pursued Mr. Sherman.

"Yes."

"Mrs. Ward, at that time did you have in your employ Lulu Barrow and Amy Mild as servants?"

"Yes, I had two servants."

"And did you take them to Jersey, the State of New Jersey?"

"Why, I did not take the cook——"

"Did they go down there with you?"

"The nurse went with me to Jersey."

The Attorney General paused for reflection. "Did Lulu Barrow and Amy Mild——" he began.

"No, Amy Mild was not in my employ then."

"Did Lulu Barrow go down there with you?"

"She did."

"And did you bring her back with you to New York?"

"No."

"Is she still down there?"

"She is out of the State."

"When did you take Lulu Barrow to New Jersey?"

"We left here the first week of April, about the 4th of April, as I recall it."

"And she has not been back here since, to your knowledge; you have not seen her in New York State since?"

"No."

"She is still in your employ?"

"Yes."

Walking back to join his aids, Mr. Sherman curtly announced, "That's all."

Group Photograph in Record.

After motioning to a court attaché to hand Mrs. Ward a glass of water, Allan P. Campbell of her husband's counsel took up cross-examination.

"Mrs. Ward," he said, "what were the particular duties of Lulu Barrow?"

Mr. Sherman cut in with a quick objection, but Justice Wagner directed Mrs. Ward to answer.

"She was nurse for my two children."

"Are these the children?" Mr. Campbell asked, picking up a large photograph showing Mrs. Ward with her children in a domestic pose on the porch of the former Ward home in Sutton Manor, New Rochelle.

"Yes, sir."

"I offer this photograph in evidence," said Mr. Campbell, while the Attorney General said that he had "no objection, excepting that it must be regarded as part of the defense—I am not putting it in."

Turning then to the jury, Mr. Campbell passed the photograph for inspection.

"Now, Mrs. Ward," he resumed, "how old are the children?"

"That I object to at this stage of the case," interjected Mr. Sherman, but the Court overruled him.

"My little girl is 5½ and my little boy is 3½."

"Now, you were asked about taking Lulu Barrow to New Jersey. Will you state the circumstances of her going?"

"I had been ill last Winter and I went to Bermuda to stay for some time, and I became very lonesome without the children, and I cabled Mr. Ward to ask him if he objected to my coming home and getting the children and going to a different resort, a different Winter resort. And I came home for about a week's time, and then I took the kiddies and myself and the nurse and my mother joined me, and we went to Atlantic City."

Sustains State's Objections.

"When Mr. Ward came home, the night that you have spoken about, and told Mr. Sherman about, did he give you any explanation of why he was out so late?"

"He did."

"Was that explanation satisfactory to you?"

The State broke in with an emphatic objection to this question, and when Justice Wagner sustained it Mr. Campbell asked that an exception be noted.

"What explanation did he give you?" he asked the witness.

Again Mr. Sherman, reinforced by Mr. O'Neill and Mr. Chambers, was on his feet protesting against the line of cross-examination.

"It's a self-serving declaration," put in Mr. O'Neill, his normally flushed face redder than usual.

"It's not self-serving," responded former Justice Isaac N. Mills, chief of the Ward forces.

"Certainly it is," said Mr. Sherman.

"It is not cross-examination at all," remarked Mr. O'Neill.

Justice Wagner sustained the objection, and again Mr. Campbell asked for an exception.

"The time that you mention of his coming home," he said, "was when you first saw him, and that was in your bedroom, was it?"

"Yes."

"That woke you up?"

"Yes."

Once more the State objected, this time on the ground that the question had been leading. The Court ruled otherwise, however, and the examination proceeded.

"So that you do not know when he had come into the house, or when he had driven into the garage?"

Campbell Stops Sherman.

"No," said Mrs. Ward, after another objection had been brushed aside. "The first I heard was Mr. Ward coming into my room."

"And that you fix as between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning?"

"I do."

Mr. Sherman moved forward and asked, "Is that all?" but Mr. Campbell motioned him back to his seat.

"Just give me a little time," he said, "and I will see what I am entitled to ask and what I am not."

"Take all the time you want," replied the State's representative.

"Besides the house," continued Mr. Campbell, "you have a garage there?"

"The garage is under the house."

"Under the house?"

"Yes."

"And in the garage you keep an automobile?"

"Yes."

"And that is the car that Mr. Ward uses to go back and forth to business?"

"Yes."

The attorney then brought out that the Wards did not maintain a chauffeur and that Mrs. Ward had not recalled any broken glass in the coupé which Ward used on the night of the shooting of Peters. Bitter wrangling by the lawyers broke out at this point, and the Court finally sustained several objections raised by the prosecution. Mr. Campbell announced that "Under your Honor's ruling I can go no further," and the witness was turned back to the State for redirect examination.

"You remember, Mrs. Ward," said Mr. Sherman, reclothing his voice in gentle suavity, "when the Extraordinary Grand Jury was in session in this case?"

"I do."

"And all that time did you remain in the State of New Jersey?"

The Witness in Tears.

Objections by the defense ruled out that question, and Mr. Sherman asked:

"Did you during that time have Amy Mild and Lulu Barrow with you in the city of Atlantic City?"

"I had Lulu Barrow."

"When did you last see Amy Mild?"

"She left my employ last November."

At this point tears began to course down Mrs. Ward's pale cheeks, but she tried to control herself. She raised a finger and wiped tears from her right cheek. Ward, watching her, was plainly distressed. His lips tightened and the fingertips of his left hand drummed on the arm of his chair.

"In November of last year?"

"Yes."

"Where were you living when she left your employ?"

"Sutton Manor."

"You have not seen her since?"

"I think I saw her probably once before Christmas, taking her a Christmas gift."

"But you have not seen her lately?"

"No."

[illegible]

to leave the stand. Tears were streaming down her face now. Mr. Sherman, remembering another question, got up again. Mrs. Ward at his signal paused, one foot on the step of the witness box and the other on the floor.

"Mrs. Ward, when you testified before the Grand Jury, do you remember whether this question was asked: 'What time did Mr. Ward come home that morning?' and did you answer: 'Mr. Ward came in between 4:30 and 5 o'clock?'"

"I probably did."

"That is your best recollection?"

"Yes."

Ward Reassures Wife.

As Mrs. Ward stepped down Mr. Campbell asked if all the jurors had heard her evidence, "because it is the last opportunity they have of this." Juror No. 3, Charles E. Keeler, a farmer of North Salem, said that her evidence had been audible to the jurors. Mrs. Ward, during this conversation, regained her seat back of her husband.

She was calm when Mrs. Peters began answering the questions of Mr. O'Neill, but only during the last minute of the mother's testimony did she look up. Then it was a brief glance from beneath the brim of her hat.

"You are the mother of Clarence Peters?" asked Mr. O'Neill.

"Yes."

"How old was he when he died?"

"Nineteen."

"You've heard about this automobile he was supposed to have 'stolen'?"

"Yes," she said—and her face pleaded with her voice—"but it was only a joy ride—he rode in it and then left it."

"And this watch?"

"It was a girl's watch. She gave it to him. I don't think he stole it. He—" her voice trailed into nothingness, and she wiped her eyes with a black-bordered handkerchief.

"Did your boy work?"

"Yes," came the dull tones, "for a fruit company for a while; for a shoe factory for a while, and for a farmer for a while." A pause, and she added, "but he didn't have no luck."

"Your son was in the navy for a while?"

"Yes, he was on the Florida."

Hand Organ Interrupts.

As Mr. O'Neill waited for his next question there came through the open windows the galloping notes of a hurdy-gurdy. It was playing "Carolina in the Morning." Peters came from South Carolina to his death in the Westchester highway.

The strident notes broke the court procedure and Justice Wagner ordered a court attendant to run down and drive away the hand organ. "Tomorrow" was being ground out, and the woman in black was waiting on the witness stand when the notes came to an abrupt stop and Mr. O'Neill was heard saying:

"What was the largest week's pay your son ever earned?"

"Twenty dollars."

"And he gave it all to you?"

"Yes."

Mr. O'Neill then picked up the two letters that Peters had written from the marine barracks at Paris Island, S. C., to his mother. He passed them to the witness, and as her eyes fell on the familiar handwriting she burst into tears. At the direction of Mr. O'Neill, she looked through blurred eyes at the missives.

"Yes, those are his," she said, and the State moved to introduce them as evidence. This provoked the stormiest fight between the lawyers yet developed. Finally Mr. O'Neill pitched the letters to the prosecution table and turning to Mrs. Peters, he said:

"After receiving those letters from your boy"—he halted for seconds—"the next thing you heard was that he had been shot out on this road?"

"Yes," came the answer, through the muffling folds of the black-bordered handkerchief, and Mr. O'Neill sat down.

"No cross-examination, Mrs. Peters," said Judge Mills, gently, and the big oak door swung again and the mother was gone.

Fight Over Peters Letters.

Her husband, a heavy-built man of about 45 years, bearing marked resemblance to his son, testified briefly to the fact that he never had heard Clarence mention "Charley Ross," "Jack Rogers" or Walter S. Ward, nor had the youth ever displayed any knowledge of firearms.

An unsuccessful fight by Mr. O'Neill to get the Peters letters into the record followed, with the jury outside the courtroom. Failing in this, it was indicated that the State would call Ralph D. Ward this morning and would then likely rest its case. The introduction of evidence for the defense is expected after the noon recess.

The defense opened the day's session by recalling former State Troopers Harry Greene and Ralph Collins, with a view to developing its gain last week when it was shown that the witnesses had talked to each other in violation of the Court's instructions to the contrary. Both witnesses stoutly denied discussing the case, and Mr. Campbell called Mrs. Rose Still, employer of Greene and one of the luncheon party, to check up on the ex-troopers. The defense failed to make progress in this move.

Three of the players at the Ward card party in his home the night of the tragedy were examined by the State. They testified that a game of poker was played and that Ward, although expected, failed to return before they left at 1 o'clock on the morning of May 16. These witnesses were George W. Sutton, Axel W. Padgell and Ernest H. Stolz.

Another witness was Frederick E. Weeks, Mayor of White Plains and former District Attorney in charge of the Ward case. He testified to the surrender of Ward and corroborated the evidence of Coroner Edward F. Fitzgerald to the effect that Ward had talked about his luck in escaping the blackmailers and to his having used "a .38 Savage—no, a Colt automatic.

Sheriff Again a Witness.

During the testimony of Mr. Weeks the defense made many vain efforts to get into the record copies of the various legal papers they had drawn in their quest for a speedy trial. A copy of Justice Seeger's opinion in fixing bail for Ward also was kept out on objections from Mr. Sherman. During the cross-examination the Attorney General shot down with great accuracy many of Mr. Campbell's questions. One of these questions was:

"Did the Attorney General tell you that it had been left to the Extraordinary Grand Jury whether any misconduct had been committed by officials of this county?"

The State's lawyers vigorously protested this inquiry, and the Court sustained them.

George S. Werner, Sheriff of Westchester, made his third appearance on the witness stand since the trial a week ago last Wednesday. He testified that Ward, in the story told by his attorneys or by himself—the Sheriff wasn't certain which—was pictured as driving down the Kensico reservoir road for about a mile toward Chappaqua after shooting Peters. After he had found a place to turn around for the trip to his New Rochelle home, Ward stopped where the body was lying and picked up the Smith & Wesson revolver which he later turned in as Peters's.

Acting Detective Sergeant Henry F. Butts, detailed by Police Commissioner Enright to aid the State in its investigation, testified as a pistol expert. He said that in order to have fired the .38 calibre Colt automatic which Ward said he used in self-defense against Peters, it would have been necessary for Ward to have pulled back the "slide" of the gun to inject a cartridge into the firing chamber. His evidence, seemingly designed to show that Ward had not been able to fire in a sudden burst of intention, was severely assailed in cross-examination by Mr. Campbell, who had at his elbow former Police Captain William A. Jones, who preceded Butts as the New York Police Department's pistol expert.

Court was adjourned until 10 o'clock today.

40 NAMES OFFERED TO BAR FOR BENCH

List From Which 10 Are to Be Picked Is Called Disappointing.

MORE NAMES ARE SOUGHT

G. O. P. Committee Proposes 22 Possibilities and Citizens Union 12.

After a list of about forty names of candidates for Supreme Court Justice had been submitted yesterday to the Bar Association, from which ten are to be selected by the Republican County Committee to go on its judicial ticket this Fall, it was stated that the list was so disappointing in regard to the quality of candidates that additional names will be called for.

Yesterday's list was submitted by former Supreme Court Justice Page, head of the committee appointed by the New York Republican County Committee, by the Citizens Union and by other independent organizations. It was originally proposed to close the list at noon yesterday, but it was finally decided to keep it open for several days longer in order to find more names. The Republican list contained twenty-two names and that of the Citizens Union twelve. The Republicans submitted the following:

Thomas B. Thatcher, John Neville Boyle, Samuel A. Berger, former Deputy Attorney General; Sidney C. Crane, Municipal Court Justice; Harry A. Cushing, McDonald DeWitt, a law associate of former Justice Clarence J. Shearn; Oscar W. Ehrhorn, City Court Justice John J. Freschi, Gustav Hartman, John H. Iselin, former Supreme Court Justice Robert McC. Marsh, A. Parker Nevin, Cortlandt Nicoll Jr., nephew of DeLancey Nicoll; John A. O'Brien, Francis A. O'Neill, Oliver C. Semple, Public Service Commissioner; Charles H. Strong, Secretary of the Bar Association; Municipal Court Justice Frederick W. Spiegelberg, Ward V. Tolbert, William C. Wilson and Charles Buchner and County Judge Louis D. Gibbs of the Bronx. Two Democrats are on the list, Justices Greschi and Crane.

The list of the Citizens' Union was as follows: Joseph M. Proskauer, Robert McC. Marsh, Albert S. Bard, Charles H. Strong, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Robert B. Thatcher, John H. Iselin, MacDonald De Witt, F. W. Spiegelberg, Harlan S. Stone, Charles E. Hughes Jr., and Charles H. Tuttle. Six Bronx Independent Democrats suggested the names of Alfred A. Henning and Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager. Both lists contained the names of Justices Nathan Bijur and Edward J. Gavegan whose terms expire this year.

The Democratic Union, of which Ernest Harvier is the head, will submit a list on Wednesday. City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan will head this list. Others will be Samuel Bell Thomas, Bernard Naumberg, Thomas Gilleran, Edward J. Corrigan, Supreme Court Justice Bijur, A. P. M. Seaman, Benjamin Franklin, Michael J. Horan, and Magistrate Bernard J. Douras, father of Marion Davies.

The Judiciary Committee of the Bar Association, of which De Lancey Nicoll is Chairman, held its meeting at the Bar Association's building, 42 West Forty-fourth Street. It will meet with the Judiciary Committee of the New York County Lawyers' Association, of which Clarence J. Shearn is Chairman, tomorrow to receive additional names. These will be investigated and turned over to the Republican County Committee on Friday. On Saturday the Republicans will hold their judiciary convention at Bryant Hall and the ten candidates will be nominated.

Tammany Hall made no attempt yesterday to submit names of candidates to the Bar Association's committee. Samuel H. Ordway, representing the committee, called at Tammany Hall with an invitation to the County Committee to take part in submitting suggestions, but Leader Charles F. Murphy could not be found and the invitation was left with Daniel A. Ryan, Secretary of the organization. Edward J. Flynn, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Bronx Democratic County Committee, was also given an invitation.

DEMANDS CROMWELL NAME ACCUSED MEN

that he has investigated the Exchange and found it perfectly all right, we shall be glad not merely to deny the gentleman the retaining fee, as we have done, but to give his name, business, Post Office address and other facts which will be of interest undoubtedly to the public.

"Furthermore, if any man, whether he be public official or not, holding high place or not, writes to the Governors of the New York Stock Exchange or to its President demanding, with covert threat, that certain bucket shops shall have our wires, we shall publish these letters no matter whether the political position of the gentleman in question be hgih or low. This is desirable not from our own point of view, but from the necessity and desirability of advising these gentlemen's confrères as to the character of the men with whom they are associated."

Banton Wants to Know.

"There is an implied statement in Mr. Cromwell's speech that three public officials have attempted to extort money or to otherwise blackmail the Stock Exchange on threats of possible hostile legislation in the event the threats were not complied with," Mr. Banton said.

"As soon as Mr. Cromwell returns to his office he will find awaiting him a subpoena to come to the District Attorney's office and tell me who these men were and what threats they made, or I'll expose him to the world as talking carelessly.

"If those threats were made I shall prosecute the persons who made them. I don't care who they are. Mr. Cromwell says that the machinery of the District Attorney's office had broken down in the prosecution of Edward M. Fuller and William F. McGee of the bucketing firm of Fuller & Co.

"The machinery of the District Attorney's office has not broken down nor has it at any time during my incumbency approached anything near that situation. Possibly it might interest Mr. Cromwell to learn that since I became District Attorney forty-two bucketing brokers have been convicted of fleecing customers and only two of those thus far tried on bucketing or grand larceny indictments have been acquitted. That number of convictions in such cases exceeded very greatly the number of convictions for those crimes obtained under all my predecessors.

"The public should know, however, that a broker who does not go into bankruptcy, but who has powerful financial interests back of him, may commit all the crimes prohibited by the laws of New York State and I can't take his books.

"If brokers were put in the respectable company of bankers, as my bill in the last Legislature provided, I would have access to their books any hour of the day.

BANKERS ASSAIL RADICALS.

Warn Also of Too Much Government Interference in Business.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 24.—Preservation of the existing order of economic and social life in the United States against the growth of radicalism was the not running through most of the public addresses at the opening session today of the forty-ninth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association.

George E. Roberts, Vice President of the National City Bank of New York; Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the New York Stock Exchange, and M. A. Traylor, President of the First Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, delivered addresses before the clearing-house section on different phases of the problem of safeguarding the status quo. Theodore G. Smith, Vice President of the Central Union Trust Company of New York, also delivered an attack upon radicalism at the meeting of the trust company division.

Mr. Roberts spoke today on "The Government in Business." Discussing the world-wide social unrest that has followed the war, he said that the revolution in Russia was against the capitalistic system as well as the Czar's Government, and that it could not be ignored that the movement against capitalism had secured the sympathy of people in all countries, including the United States.

Agitation for Government operation of industry, he said, was being carried on "with fanatical fervor" all over the country. "Thousands of people who would not give their approval to extreme policies," he said, "are helping them along by favoring the continual extension of governmental activities in business affairs."

A successful defense of the existing order, Mr. Roberts declared, required the exposé of the economic fallacies responsible for the new ideas of equality in possessions, incomes and management of industrial affairs. He ridiculed the radical argument that the wealth employed in industry benefits nobody but the owners. This, he pointed out, was like saying that nobody got any benefit from the development of the steam engines except the owners of engines.

"The people who advocate Government ownership of the railroads and other industries," he went on, "usually have in mind that the public will thereby avoid paying profits to the owners. They overlook the fact that if there were no surplus earnings, nothing left over after paying expenses, there would be no capital for the improvement and enlargement of these services and no industrial progress."

Declaring that every venture the Government makes in the field of business shows its ineptitude, Mr. Roberts cited the operation of the railroads during the war [illegible]

Stock Exchange in his address on "The Problems and Policies of the New York Stock Exchange," not only described the reasons why the Exchange was opposed to regulatory legislation and political interference, but also announced the adoption of a new policy, under which the Exchange will fight a publicity battle against its enemies and detractors, instead of remaining on the defensive as in the past.

After telling of threats of adverse legislation against the Stock Exchange unless certain demands were complied with and the purpose to expose such officials hereafter, Mr. Cromwell continued:

"The Stock Exchange will continue to fight bucketshops, and it will fight those affiliated with bucketshops who seek to make money out of the power given them by their political connections. Do not think that I am attacking political parties or the great body of public men who are giving their time and earnest effort to the work of government. The State of New York has in its Legislature men of the highest type and in its other public offices men equally impeccable.

"It is not political parties with which I quarrel but political pirates and those hangers-on who are mixed up with politics and interfere with law enforcement. The political buccaneer knows no party, and the public official who is spineless in the enforcement of the law is usually the one who makes gratuitous, purposeless and rabble rousing attacks on decent men and decent institutions. Public officials should know that crooks take on the protective coloration of respectable business men, but instead of recognizing this fact and realizing that crooks are crooks and merely the barnacles of decent bussiness, decent business is attacked in the pulpits, in the magazines, in the public prints."

Mr. Cromwell said that legislation proposed to regulate the Stock Exchange might "fatallly cripple" it in its most important work. He asserted that the Exchange had done better under its own management that it could under State control. It has destroyed the "clean-sheet" bucket shops, he declared, and was doing its best to wipe out the new type.

"The new bucket shop," he went on, "is a more sinister affair than the old, because it has an underground background of tremendous influence and weight and is supported by men whose position in the community has the appearance of being free from any taint or connection with such vicious operations."

He charged that recent legislation has been aimed at the Stock Exchange, instead of bucket shops and stock swindlers, and has been endorsed by "bucketeers" and applauded by crooks and swindlers. He said that the bucket-shop revelations of the last few months had justified the position of the Exchange in refusing to give up its autonomy or open its doors to a horde of "politicians and potential criminals."

According to Mr. Cromwell, licensing and examination of brokers books would open up "the richest graft in the history of the nation." Crooks would get licenses and operate under State protection, he said, because the issuance of licenses would be in the hands of politicians. "If you have been following the New York newspapers the last few months, you may have noted the queer mix-up between politicians and bucket shops," he added.

The solution of the bucket-shop problem, Mr. Cromwell continued, "was in law enforcement rather than in new laws." He said he hoped that the "revelations now going on in the Fuller case will show still more clearly bucketing in its complications with politics."

Speaking on "The Clearing House in Its Relation to Our Financial and Economic Structure," Mr. Traylor said that State and national supervision and regulation of banks by political appointees and by changing administrative heads had not been all it should be. The Clearing House section, he said, should insist on larger appropriations for the State and National Banking Departments in order to improve them.

Mr. Traylor said that examinations conducted by clearing house associations are more efficient than the Government examinations. He urged the bankers thmselves to take every precaution to make bank failures impossible, lest agitation increase for the guarantee of deposits "and other unsound legislation."

The Chicago banker defended the Federal Reserve system "as originally intended," but urged that the public be asked for approval of a reinstatement of the original provision of the law that at least two members of the board be trained bankers.

At the meeting of the trust division, Mr. Smith, retiring President of that division, declared that pessimists, radicals and agitators had created a false economic perspective in America.

"The menace with which bankers particularly and intimated are concerned," he said, "is the danger of the Federal Reserve system coming more under political control than under banking control and that the facilities of the system may be exploited by the dictates of political expediency rather than banking and business considerations."

Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, also spoke before the trust company division, reviewing conditions in Europe, whence he has just returned after a two months' trip. He predicted "revolution and political and economic chaos in Europe before many months go by," unless a solution of the European problem was reached in the meantime.

He foresaw Bolshevism in Prussia, monarchism in Bavaria and a separate Rhineland republic. The Soviet Government in Russia, he said, had come to stay in one form or another for an indefinite period. Under Mussolini, he added, Italy had been making good progress.

Mr. Sisson said it was absolutely necessary for the allied nations to agree quickly on a settlement of the reparations question. The situation vitally affects the United States, he added, but it was hard to imagine what our part would be.

The following officers for the coming year were elected by the Clearing House section:

President, Francis Coates Jr., Cleveland; Vice President, C. W. Allendoerfer, Kansas City, Mo.; Chairman of the Executive Committee, Alexander Dunbar, Pittsburgh; members of Executive Committee [illegible]

LACKS PLAN TO END SHIPPING DEFICITS

Board Tells Coolidge American Laws Put on Us a Handicap of $5 a Ton.

NEW CONTRACT DRAFTED

This Would Retain Much of the Old One, but Avoid the Features Declared Illegal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—President Coolidge has been advised by members of the Shipping Board that a thorough canvass of the situation has failed to develop any suggested plan of operating the Government's merchant fleet which offers hope of escaping a continued deficit.

Computation of the various factors which enter into marine transportation place "a fixed differential" of $5 a ton against American ships, the President was informed, and this handicap must be met regardless of the method of operation devised by the board.

The best to be hoped, Mr. Coolidge was told, is that the board in carrying out existing laws can hold losses as near as possible to the irreducible minimum.

Work is being rushed by the board on the compromise plan designed to take the place of that declared illegal by Attorney General Daugherty. The plan will be considered by the board finally, it was predicted, at its regular meeting tomorrow and presented to President Coolidge at a conference later in the week.

As now drawn the new plan proposes to use some basic features of the present operating system with modifications designed to assist such operating agents as are retained in building up a permanent business. At the same time the board would retain a measure of supervision which it feels would prevent the objection raised by the Attorney General concerning the delegation of a trustees authority. Reduction of guarantees to the lowest point permissible under the Jones act was said to be a permanent feature of the proposed compromise.

Protests against adoption of any operating system entailing more direct Government operation than now in effect were made at the White House today by the Middle West Foreign Trade Committee. Members of the committee said President Coolidge had expressed sympathy with its views while stating he had no plan of operation in mind, and had welcomed the co-operation of the committee.

The delegation was headed by Senator Willis and former Senator Pomerene of Ohio and Malcolm Stewart, a Cincinnati manufacturer. Its members proposed to the President that present contracts for operation of the Government ships be altered to make them legal, if their legality was doubted, rather than have new contracts executed. It was contended that the signing of new contracts would further remove the time for the Government's retirement from the shipping business.

Enactment of legislation to encourage American tonnage through preferential rates and removal of discriminatory duties was also advocated.

great class of American people who are not members of either faction."

Governor Walton may not be the exclusive subject of legislative investigation, it was indicated. Several members of the Legislature may be asked for explanations of certain actions not mentioned and the scope of the House investigation, if that body meets, will include whatever lawless acts fall within the legal limits of inquiry, members declared.

Jewett Threatens Suit on Charges.

The Oklahoma City military court continued today to push its inquiry into mob activities. Cliff Myers, Oklahoma County Clerk, was before the tribunal several hours. Jurors are drawn by the jury commission and summonses are issued by the clerk.

It is believed that Myers was questioned in connection with Governor Walton's assertion that the jury commission was controlled by the K. K. K.

Members of two undertaking firms, both of which maintain ambulance services, also were before the court.

Grand Dragon Jewett today declared that he intended to seek damages in a civil action for charges made against him in connection with the revealing of testimony before the military court here.

Tulsa Court Told of Burnings.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—Testimony describing the burning of three houses in Tulsa in one night by a party of masked men was heard by Governor J. C. Walton's Military Commission this morning as investigation into hooded band activities was resumed, a high officer of the commission declared in an interview with newspaper men.

When the commission adjourned Saturday the number of cases bared since Tulsa County was put under martial law on Aug. 14 stood at 121, it was announced.

Sheriff R. D. Sanford of Tulsa County and City Police Commissioner Kiskaddon of Tulsa "both are members of the K. K. K.," the Military Commission announced, "and we have positive evidence that their forces never have investigated a single case of these outrages which have been brought to our attention."

A wedding ceremony performed in the centre of a field in Creek County, adjoining Tulsa County, while the bridegroom was chained to a gas engine, with pistols leveled at his head, was another case heard by the Military Commission this morning.

FORTUNE TELLER IS RIGHT.

Fulfills Prediction Clerk Would Get Money by Paying Fine.

Miss Pauline Nichol, a gypsy, told one fortune in Long Island City Police Court yesterday of which she was certain of the truth. She had been tried and found guilty of telling fortunes publicly by Magistrate James J. Conway and fined $25. As she approached the clerk he held out his hand and she grasped it.

"I see by your hand that you are about to come into money," she said.

"I am sure of it," answered the clerk. "Twenty-five dollars of your money."

The gypsy paid and left the court room smiling.

Patrolman Robert West, assigned to plain clothes duty, had charged that she accosted him on the street, read his palm and accepted a dollar in payment. The note, which had previously been marked by West, was produced as evidence.

2 AMERICANS DEAD IN BALLOON RACE

death when the S-6 fell, in the opinion of Dr. van Binvbergen of Nistelrode, who examined the bodies. He telegraphed the Aero Club in Brussels that Lieutenant Olmsted's body was found under the bag in the basket, while that of his companion was about twenty-five feet away, as if the victim had jumped.

Two members of the Aero Club were sent from Brussels to take charge of the bodies.

Official advices confirm the destruction of the Spanish balloon Polar and the Swiss balloon Geneva, as well as the death of three of the aeronauts in them.

Details as to how the Geneva met her fate are lacking, but it appears that she was struck by lightning near Beverloo and burned in mid-air at an altitude of 1,000 feet. Peasants who ran to the spot found the dead bodies of Lieutenant von Gruningen and Lieutenant Wehren.

The Polar also caught fire from a bolt and fell near Heyst-Goor. Her pilot, Penaranda Barca, was killed and his assistant, Gomez Guillamon, whose fall was broken when an eddy of wind blew the car against a tree top, received fractures of both legs and other injuries.

Spaniard Tells of Experiences.

Guillamon had sufficiently recovered this afternoon from his injuries to tell the story of the accident. Guillamon, who is under treatment in the Malines Hospital, said the Polar was struck by lightning while at an altitude of 3,500 feet. It had only a few seconds previously escaped crashing to the ground. Penaranda Barca, the other occupant, threw two bags of sand overboard and the balloon shot up right into the teeth of the storm.

Then came the lightning bolt, which set the bag on fire. It burned speedily, with the exception of the upper part, which was of slower combustion and acted as a parachute. Guillamon jumped when the basket was a hundred feet above the ground and landed in a soft, bushy swamp. Both his legs were broken. Barca was killed by the lightning bolt.

The balloon Prince Leopold, a Belgian entry, met with a considerable mishap soon after the start. She was beaten down by the rain squall and fouled the chimneys in the industrial suburb of Woluwe. Pilot Veenstra was obliged to dump the entire ballast, including the scientific instruments, before the balloon again ascended, thus greatly handicapping the aeronauts for their flight.

Captain H. E. Honeywell of the balloon St. Louis, which burst before the start, was greatly affected by the deaths of his fellow-aeronauts.

"Cyclonic conditions predicted for Sunday over Ireland indicated the most unfavorable conditions were due from the north for travelers, who were threatened with being caught in a collision between two storms. Given such conditions, the organizers might have postponed the meeting. If the rules do not allow postponement they must be modified, otherwise the pilots will take the matter into their own hands, as we do not intend to amuse people at the cost of our lives.

"Late starts should never be given. Otherwise the arrangements on Sunday were perfect, but the atmospheric conditions were the worst in my experience, which includes fifteen races, eight of them being for the James Gordon Bennett Cup and 564 other trips."

King Albert Expresses Condolences.

King Albert this afternoon sent a staff officer to the United States and Spanish Embassies and the Swiss Legation to express his personal condolences over the loss of lives in the cup race.

The Meteorological Bureau, in view of the possibility that some of the balloons not yet reported might have sped across Germany toward the Baltic, issued a forecast stating that the probabilities for the next twenty-four hours indicated a lower temperature over the Baltic, with strong south to southwesterly winds and rain squalls.

VICTIMS EXPERIENCED FLIERS.

Both Olmsted and Shoptaw Had Long Records as Balloonists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Lieutenant Robert S. Olmsted, who with Lieutenant John W. Shoptaw, was killed last night when the army balloon they were flying in the James Gordon Bennett race from Brussels was struck by lightning in Holland, was born in Sheldon, Vt., July 23, [illegible]. He entered Tufts College and took a course in civil engineering. Afterward he enlisted in the Army Air Service, receiving training at the Balloon School, Fort Omaha, Neb. He was commissioned a second lieutenant Jan. 6, 1918. In 1920, he was placed sixth in the international balloon races at Birmingham, Ala., and won the elimination contest of the July 4 race which began at Indianapolis. About three years ago, Lieutenant Olmsted was an entrant in an air carnival at Bolling Field, jumping from a balloon with a parachute. He was not married.

Lieutenant Shoptaw was born at Worthington, Ind., March 28, 1889. He enlisted in the Signal Corps in 1907 and when the great war began he was commissioned a second lieutenant after graduating from the Balloon School at Fort Omaha. In the Indianapolis elimination balloon race he was aid to Lieutenant Olmsted. Lieutenant Shoptaw was married and had two children.

AMERICAN SEAPLANE WRECKED OFF ENGLAND

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The American seaplane entered for the seventh annual competition for the Schneider Cup, on Sept. 28, fell into the sea near Portsmouth during a trial flight today and was totally wrecked. The occupants were picked up unhurt.

Lieutenant A. Worthington Gorton of Providence, R. I., was piloting the seaplane when it fell. Lieutenant Gorton broke the speed record for flight in a seaplane twice in one day at Philadelphia on Aug. 9 last, attaining an average speed of 180.8 miles an hour in his final test.

The Schneider trophy for seaplanes is to be raced for off Cowes, Isle of Wight, Sept. 28, Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States being the competitors.

Each nation is represented by three machines, with one in reserve. The American team, consisting of four officers and seven men of the United States Navy, had for its three active service machines two Curtiss racers and one light navy plane. One of the fastest British machines intended for the race was disabled by an accident early this month and had to be withdrawn.

"ABSENT"!

"The Viewpoint of the Employee is the Most Neglected Asset in Industry."

After the morning whistle blows at your plant, every card in this rack means a missing producer—perhaps the operator of an important machine that must stand in expensive idleness all day. Each "out" card represents a loss in production and a loss in profits. Every morning your time-rack shows absenteeism. Why?

Nearly every case of absenteeism can be traced to some form of misunderstanding, ignorance or poor judgment on someone's part. Perhaps there are causes in your plant unknown to you or your foremen. Perhaps you are not even fully aware of the situation.

YET—every day, consciously or unwittingly, you are paying toll to one of the controllable factors that are causing serious losses in your plant. Whatever the cause of unwarranted absenteeism, we can engage to correct it, with great profit to employee and employer.

You will be interested in our booklet, "Stopping Payroll Losses," which is sent executives gratis, on request. Please address Dept. L I.

REDS BUMP GIANTS IN FIRST GAME, 6-3

Single and Homer by Fowler Score Enough Runs to Win for Cincinnati.

RYAN HAS ONE BAD INNING

McGraw's Pitcher Falters in Seventh, While Donohue Is Steady in the Pinches.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24.—Chester Arthur Fowler, a youngster filling in at shortstop for the Reds, slugged the Giants into submission in the first of a two-game series here today, the champs losing by a score of 6 to 3. As the score indicates, the Reds really needed only four runs to win and Fowler accounted for that many, driving in one run with a single and bringing in three more with a home run with two men on base.

Pete Donohue broke up the Giants' attack in the pinches, so that their many opportunities for scoring yielded little. Bill Ryan, who pitched seven innings, had only one bad inning. This was the seventh, and in that inning the Reds won the game. Claude Jonnard pitched the eighth inning and was reached for two totally unnecessary runs.

As early as the first inning the Giants wasted an excellent chance to score. Bancroft walked and was forced at second by Groh, who raced to third when Frisch doubled to left. A pass to Young filled the bases, but Meusel's mighty swing at a slow ball produced only a puny roller in front of the plate, which Hargrave fielded in time to force Groh at the plate. Cunningham was then called out on strikes.

Giants Miss Chance.

A two-base wild throw by Fowler of Kelly's grounder gave the Giants another opening in the second inning. Snyder walked and Ryan moved the runners up with a sacrifice, but Pinelli grabbed Bancroft's line drive and stepped on third base, doubling Kelly off that bag. Groh beat out a hit to Pinelli in the third inning and Frisch was safe on a fumble by Kimmick, but Young forced Frisch and Meusel lined to Fowler, who threw to Daubert, doubling Young off first.

Two hits were tossed away by the champions in the fourth inning, and in the fifth they filled the bases on an infield hit by Frisch and passes to Young and Cunningham, but with two out Kelly lifted to Roush.

In their half of the fifth the Reds scored a run by grace of an error by Cunningham. Duncan had been retired when Hargrave singled to centre and kept on to second when Cunningham booted the ball. Pinelli was thrown out by Frisch, but Fowler shot a hit past Frisch and Hargrave scored.

Two Giants were out in the seventh inning when Young reached first base on a low throw by Fowler. A hit and run play was called for and Meusel rapped the ball down the first base line for a triple, scoring Young. Again Cunningham took a third strike with his bat on his shoulder.

The game was sewed up by the Reds in their half of this inning. Roush beat out a hit to Frisch and reached the middle bag on a sacrifice by Duncan. Hargrave was purposely passed and Pinelli flied to Meusel, but Fowler lashed the ball to deep left centre for a home run, scoring Roush and Hargrave ahead of him.

Snyder tripled to right centre in the eighth and Maguire was put on to run for him, but Terry, who batted for Ryan, hit to Pinelli and Maguire was snuffed out at the plate. The Reds put the game beyond reach of the Giants in their half of this inning, bumping Jonnard for two runs.

Daubert walked and Kimmick hit to Kelly, who tried for a force play on Daubert, only to have Bancroft drop his throw. Roush doubled to right centre, scoring Daubert, but Kimmick, who also tried to score, was cut down at the plate on a fine relay by Kelly. Duncan then singled to centre, scoring Roush.

Frisch's Triple Helps.

A trick triple by Fritsch helped the Giants to score two runs in the ninth. Groh opened with a single to right and Frisch smashed the ball at Kimmick. It glanced off the second sacker's shins into right field and by the time it was retrieved Groh had scored and Frisch was on third base. Kimmick threw out Young, but Frisch scored on the out.

ROBINS BEAT CARDS IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Grimes Twirls Brooklyn to Victory in Opener, 8-2—Ruether Wins Second, 7-3.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24.—The Brooklyn Robins captured both games of a double-header from the Cardinals here this afternoon, winning the first by a score of 8 to 2 and taking the second by a 7 to 3 count.

Burleigh Grimes twirled the opener for the Robins and allowed only six hits, while the Brooklyn club pounded three St. Louis pitchers for a total of sixteen hits. Fournier led the attack for the Robins with two doubles, a triple and a single in five times at bat. It was Grimes's twentieth victory of the season.

In the second game Ruether annexed his thirteenth victory of the season and now needs only two more to qualify for a $1,000 bonus from Ebbets. The Robins clinched this game with a five-run rally in the fourth. The scores:

YANKS' BIG INNING BEATS TIGERS, 12-4

Two-Bagger by Ruth in Sixth Starts Rally That Results in Nine Runs.

HOYT HIT HARD AT START

But Settles Down After Detroit Scores Three in First Frame—Cobb Makes Star Catch.

Although it didn't mean a thing, the Yankees defeated the Tigers at the Stadium yesterday, 12 to 4. It was nothing more than a world's series workout for the proud and pompous Yankees, which made the beating all the more bitter for Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who needed the game badly in his third-place struggle with the St. Louis Browns. The latter team won two games at Boston and now is so close to Cobb's athletes that Tyrus is beginning to worry even over third place.

Waite Hoyt, working out in preparation for the world's series, had a terrible first inning and eight excellent innings thereafter. When the Tigers bunched four hits in a row for three runs it looked as if Waite's workout would be transferred to the clubhouse, but he survived, and in the sixth the Yanks, after lying totally dormant for five innings, fell on King Cole with such abrupt rudeness that they scored nine runs.

The sixth was the whole game, as might be surmised, so here it is: Babe Ruth opened with a double to left, a high fly that was played raggedly by Manush and Rigney. Pipp lined a savage smash to centre which Tyrus R. Cobb caught off his left ankle by a falling, diving catch, one of the best of the season. It cut off several runs, but didn't check the Yanks. Meusel ripped a single to right and scored Ruth. Ward's short double to right drove in long Bob. Schang was hit by a pitched ball and Scott was safe on Haney's fumble, filling the bases.

Hoyt grounded to Jones and forced Meusel at the plate for the second out, but Witt chopped a hit off Cole's glove, sending Ward in with the tying run. On Dugan's single to left Scott and Hoyt ran home, and Joe, going to second on the throw plateward, scored with Witt and Ruth on Pipp's double to right after the Babe had been passed purposely to fill the bases. Meusel made his second hit of the inning, a two-bagger to centre, and Pipp came in with run No. 9. Curtains for the Tigers.

Ward's single, his third hit, and Schang's triple manufactured another run in the seventh, and Ruth's second safety, a double to right, was mixed up with hits by Witt and Meusel and Pipp's sacrifice fly to produce two more in the eighth.

Commissioner K. M. Landis watched the game from a box and said afterward that no arrangements would be made for the world's series until the race in the National League is definitely settled—unless that should come too late to make the necessary preparations.

Dressing Men versus Selling Suits

For once we are going to talk shop, and quote this bit of common sense written by Edward J. Brooks, for Men's Wear:

"The chief difference between custom-made clothes and ready-to-wear is in the way they are sold. . . . The tailor, as a rule, knows his business, while the retail clothier, as a rule, does not. One dresses men, the other sells suits; and there's a big difference, whether you realize it or not."

It was the realization of this fact that led D'Andrea Brothers to add a Ready to Wear Department to their long-established Made to Measure business. Whether you buy your clothes Made to Measure or Ready to Wear, our first interest is always to dress you well.

FAVORITES ADVANCE IN PRO GOLF PLAY

Farrell and Cruickshank Extended, but Win in P. G. A. Tourney at Pelham.

BARNES EXHIBITS POWER

Defeats Dernbach, 12 and 11, in Easy Victory—Sarazen, Hagen and Kirkwood Survive.

All of golf's topnotchers came through with flying colors in the opening round of match play of the sixth annual P. G. A. championship at the Pelham Country Club yesterday. The event, which is for the title now held by Gene Sarazen of Briarcliff Ledge, last year's open king, attracted a select field composed of the majority of star professional golfers in the country. Only a few were missing, either for failing to make the grade in the sectional qualifying rounds or for other reasons. Jock Hutchison, 1920 winner, who was expected to be among the starters, was ill and unable to make the journey from Chicago. Eddie Loos, another Windy City star, defaulted, as did also Mike Brady of Oakland Hills, winner of the Canadian title this year.

Among the stars in the upper half of the bracket who advanced to the second round yesterday were Bobby Cruickshank of Shackamaxon, runner-up to Bobby Jones in the open this year; "Long Jim" Barnes, the Pelham pro, who has twice held the title, and Sarazen. In the lower half the prominent winners were Clarence Hackney of Atlantic City, holder of the Canadian and Philadelphia open titles; Walter Hagen, winner in 1921; Joe Kirkwood, the Australian; Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge, Willie Ogg of Worchester, Mass., and George McLean, Shawnee and Westchester County open champion.

Of these Farrell had the hardest row to hoe to keep his place in the championship line. Playing against Dave McKay of Pittsburgh, Farrell finished the morning round 4 down. By winning the seventh, eighth and ninth holes—the latter by a fine approach over a mound on the green—the local star reduced his opponent's lead to only one hole when they reached the turn in the afternoon. Playing to the tenth hole, Farrell pulled his mashie niblick to a trap at the left of the green, but he saved a half when he got out and down in two putts, while his rival squandered three on the green. Johnny returned the compliment at the eleventh, when he was a shot ahead of McKay on the green, but used three putts to hole out. He won the next hole and thereafter was always ahead.

Cruickshank had a tooth-and-nail battle with William Leach of Overbrook, Pa., but won by 2 and 1. His rounds were 73 and 75 for the par 74 course. Sarazen drew a tough assignment in the person of Lloyd Gullickson of Columbus, Ohio. In spite of that fact, the defending champion was 5 up at noon and was even 4's when he finished the match, 8 and 7. Barnes had an easy time with George Dernbach of Providence, winning by the one-sided score of 12 and 11.

The summaries:

Scott Plays in 1,128th Game, Setting New World's Record

Everett Scott, the Yankee shortstop, played his 1,128th consecutive game yesterday and thereby established a new record for both major and minor leagues in this respect. The Deacon, long ago, set up a new mark for the majors, but statisticians, delving into the records, discovered that Perry Lipe, a player in the Southern League, had finished a record of 1,127 games in a row in 1902. This twenty-one-year-old mark for baseball was shattered completely yesterday by Scott, who started his long string on June 20, 1916, with the Boston Red Sox. If the Yankee shortstop finishes this season without a break he will be able to boast of having played seven complete seasons and most of another.

ZEV TRAINS WELL FOR PAPYRUS RACE

Hildreth Expects Him to Be Fit for International Test—My Own in Maryland.

Zev, the Rancocas Stable's candidate to meet the English three-year-old Papyrus in the $100,000 international race at Belmont Park on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 20, is training in fine shape and S. C. Hildreth, his trainer, expects that he will be fit should he be chosen to uphold the honor of the American turf against the visitor, which is now on the water. Zev is galloping daily and his injured off forefoot, from which he cast part of the frog in the running of the Lawrence Realization, is mending as rapidly as could be expected, being protected by a bar plate in his regular work.

Zev was out on Sunday at the Belmont Park track, where his training is being continued regularly and worked in the sloppy going of the main track. He breezed three furlongs in company with his stable companion, the two-year-old colt Mad Play, in 0:37. Yesterday morning Hildreth had Zev out for a real workout and he breezed the mile and a furlong in 1:58, the fractional times being as follows: 0:52, 1:17 2-5, 1:43 2-5, 1:58.

The Salubria Stable's My Own, the three-year-old colt owned by Admiral Cary T. Grayson which is also a serious contender to meet the English colt, was shipped to Maryland following his victory in the American Trial Sweepstakes. Having given up his chance to run in the rich Jockey Club Gold Cup, Admiral Grayson is expected to take a shot at the rich stakes down for early decision with the unbeaten son of King James and Bettie Landon. It is possible that the colt will be a starter in the $10,000 Havre de Grace Handicap at a mile and an eighth at the Havre de Grace track next Saturday afternoon.

The Greentree Stable's Untidy, which gave these two colts such brilliant races in the two trials, is training on and undoubtedly will be honored by being chosen as one of the substitutes.

Papyrus is expected to land on American soil on Friday afternoon. He will be taken immediately to Belmont Park, where he will be under constant guard. Three of the best Pinkerton men will work in eight-hour shifts as his especial bodyguard from the time he arrives until he departs on his homeward voyage.

All is well with the Derby winner on his voyage. A radiogram was received by the Cunard Company yesterday, the text of which in part follows:

"Intense interest taken in the departure of the Aquitania and thousands saw the ship off. Everybody eager to bet on Papyrus, which to some is Egyptian for paper, but to the crowd on the Aquitania means the winner of the big $100,000 race.

"The Channel crossing was not so bad. We have now passed Bishop's big seas. Trainer Basil Jarvis and Dr. V. Pride-Jones, the veterinarian, are well satisfied with the condition of their charge. So far the colt is in excellent shape and he has suffered no discomfort. The weather shows signs of abating."

HAVRE DE GRACE RESULTS.

TREE TOP CAPTURES BELDAME HANDICAP

Ultimus Filly Breaks Fast and Is Home First in Field of 14 at Aqueduct.

HARMONICON TO OSPREY

Sande Rides the Belmont Gelding to Easy Victory Over the Six-Furlong Route.

Breaking fast from her post position, second from the rail, and holding her speed to the finish, the Greentree Stable's brown filly Tree Top, by Ultimus—Thirty-third, came home at the head of a field of fourteen two-year-old fillies in the Beldame Handicap, the featured event on the card at the Aqueduct track yesterday afternoon. She ran the five furlongs in the fast time of 0:58 2-5, over a track that had dried out during the early racing until it was good, and earned $4,525 for Mrs. Payne Whitney.

It was a cumbersome field of juveniles that paraded for the Beldame Handicap, too many for the scramble out of the chute and around the elbow, in which the order of the finish too often is determined by fast breaking and racing luck. It took three minutes to get the misses aligned at the barrier. The Marrone Stable's Anna Marrone II. was the first to get into her stride, and she fought it out with Tree Top and the Rancocas Stable's Exploit all the way to the finish.

Coltiletti rode a keen race on Tree Top and saved a lot of ground with his mount. Anna Marrone II., on the other hand, ran wide and lost ground on the swing into the homestretch. This put Tree Top at the head of the big field, a position she held until the finish line was crossed, where she was just her own length in front of Anna Marrone II.

The Harmonicon Highweight Handicap, for all ages at six furlongs, brought out a field of four. August Belmont's three-year-old gelding Osprey, by Fair Play—Olympic, was the strong favorite. Sande had the mount and the rail position and he sent the chestnut gelding to the front with fall of the flag. He held Osprey under wraps all through the race, the gelding being much the best of the lot.

THE SCREEN

Life in the Middle Ages.

MONNA VANNA—With Lee Parry, Paul Wegener, Hans Strum, Paul Graetz, Hans Hurka, Emil Rameau, Dr. Max Pohl, Toni Zimmerer, Lydia Salmonova, Olaf Fjord, Viktor Gehring; from the play by Maurice Maeterlinck. Directed by Richard Eichberg. At the Central Theatre.

The screen presentation by William Fox of Maeterlinck's play has the merits and the faults that are likely to occur in the pictorial telling of a story of life in the Middle Ages which deals with characters not familiar to us. Castles, moats, drawbridges, winding staircases, men in armor, maids with flowing hair, priests, fools—these always make effective scenes, and the director and photographer in this production have made the most of their opportunities in this respect. But it is difficult, requiring the subtle touches of a master director to make these far-away persons seem real; and here Eichberg has only in one or two cases succeeded. The production suffers, too, from the slow pace of the first half of the story, far too much time being taken up with the diplomatic incidents preceding the outbreak of the war between Pisa and Florence.

The actors have been skilfully chosen for their rôles. They all look like Italians of the period. Lee Parry as Monna Vanna is surely one of the most beautiful actresses in her branch of the profession, and her lover in this story, Vitellozo Vitelli, played by Olaf Fjord, is a fitting partner. Seated on his horse, clad in a magnificent suit of armor, he is a stirring figure. We should have liked to see more of him at close range as he waved his sword and led his men to battle. Paul Wegener, the Guido Gurlino, Monna Vanna's first husband, gives a vigorous performance of the leading male rôle.

CHARGE CONSPIRACY OVER DYE PATENTS

Justice Officials Blame Palmer and Garvan in Transfer of Alien Property.

CONTEST ACTION BY WILSON

They Deny President Could Legally Delegate His Power, but Disclaim Criticism.

SEEK RETURN OF PATENTS

Brief Filed in Wilmington Federal Court Asks Cancellation of Chemical Foundation Deal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The sale of enemy-owned patents to the Chemical Foundation, Inc., by the Alien Property Custodian was accomplished through a "combination, scheme and conspiracy," the Government charges in a brief filed today in the Federal District Court at Wilmington, Del., in its suit to set aside the sale.

Former Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, Francis P. Garvan, former Alien Property Custodian and now President of the Foundation, and others are assailed in the brief, which is signed by Attorney General Daugherty, Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, Va., special assistant to the Attorney General, and other Government counsel.

The evidence adduced at the trial of the case before Judge Morris at Wilmington some months ago is reviewed, and authorities quoted at length to support the major contentions of the Government, which are:

That President Wilson could not delegate to Assistant Secretary of State Polk his authority to order a private sale of seized enemy property.

That President Wilson's order of Feb. 13, 1920, did not attempt to ratify the orders of Mr. Polk authorizing private sale of the property.

That the sales were invalid because of "the combination of substantially all of the prospective purchasers into one organization."

That the sales were invalid because "purposely made in such a manner as to destroy, in whole or in part, the value of the property."

That the sales were illegal and void "on account of the relations of the parties conducting the same to each other and to the subject matter."

That the sales were illegal and void for the reasons that "the price paid was arbitrarily arrived at and grossly inadequate."

Says Vendors Joined Purchasers.

That the transactions of alleged sale and assignment were unlawful and void, "since in effect they constituted an effort on the part of the Alien Property Custodian to confiscate the alien property and to give or donate the same as a bounty in the aid of certain private industries."

Calling attention that officers in the Alien Property organization became officers of the Chemical Foundation, Inc., the brief says: "No one can read this evidence without reaching the conclusion that the representatives of the dye and chemical industry proposed to foreclose any opposition to this transaction by making the officers and agents of the United States the officers and agents of their prospective corporation."

"This sale was procured by those interested in the dye and chemical industry, through the American Dyes Institute," the brief continues, "by methods and for purposes entirely contrary to the objects and aims of the Trading With the Enemy act; in a manner which constitutes a violation of the trust imposed upon the Alien Property Custodian by that act and his position with respect to that property; and for purposes and by methods which were in conflict with the laws of the United States."

After reviewing the negotiations leading up to the organization of the Foundation and the actual seizure and sale of the dye and chemical patents, the brief charges that "the dye and chemical manufacturers, now grown bold, proposed, through the War Trade Board, to override the entire interallied council, of which the President himself was a member * * *."

"But they did not stop there," the brief continues. "The Alien Property Custodian had secured the appointment of Mr. Bradley W. Palmer at the peace conference and * * * on the day before the first of these sales took place Mr. Garvan, then Alien Property Custodian, and the President of the Chemical Foundation, cabled to Mr. Bradley Palmer with respect to the proposed importation into the United States of reparation dyes, for which the President had arranged in the peace negotiations:

"'Doubtful if any dyes will be used even if imported. You may face a new tea party.'

"In other words, they not only proposed to prevent importations—if the President, sitting in Paris, undertook to arrange for such importation we might face 'a new tea party'—a new revolution in the United States."

Deny Wilson Could Delegate Power.

President Wilson, the brief declared, gave a power of attorney to Frank L. Polk, Assistant Secretary of State, with authority to deal with the patents while Mr. Wilson was at the Paris Peace Conference. The brief said Mr. Polk approved the sale, without having read the Chemical Foundation's charter, after a telephone conversation with Mr. Palmer.

It was asserted that Mr. Wilson did not possess the authority to transfer his power to Mr. Polk, and that the latter acted without sufficient knowledge of the transaction. The brief declared that while the question was one of "great delicacy, in whatever has been said there is no criticism of the President or Mr. Polk."

The Leviathan of the United States Lines, which was due to arrive yesterday from Cherbourg and Southampton with a big list of returning Americans, was delayed by fog and squalls and will dock at Pier 86, North River, this morning. Among her passengers in the first cabin are former Governor William Cameron Sproul of Pennsylvania, Edward T. Stotesbury, banker, of Philadelphia, and United States Senators Kenneth McKellar of Tenessee, William B. McKinley of Illinois and Joseph Robinson of Arkansas. Congressman Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Longworth and Congressman F. A. Britten of Chicago also are on board.

"Psychic Sense" Fails Seer When Detectives Visit Him

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Professor Tony Hamiwey, who came to New Rochelle about six months ago and describes himself as an "Arabian psychic practitioner of astrology who never fails," advertised he would give $5 to any one whose name or business he could not reveal.

Today he failed when Detectives Mancussi and Towne called on him and sought advice in connection with their future. Not only did he fail to disclose their identity and their means of livelihood, but he neglected to advance the reward when informed of his failure.

The professor was arrested and taken before Judge Swinburn, charged with being a professional fortune teller. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded until Thursday for trial.

NEAR AN AGREEMENT ON FIUME'S STATUS

Yugoslavs Say Progress Is Satisfactory, but Nintchitch Will Not Visit Mussolini.

NEW FRONTIER IN TERMS

Serbs Would Use Harbor Duty Free—Military Alliance Dropped for the Present.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 24.—The Yugoslav Legation in Rome today denied that Foreign Minister Nintchitch of the Serb State has asked for a meeting with Premier Mussolini, or that his presence in Venice is to be interpreted to mean that he will ask for an audience with the Premier in the near future.

Signor Nintchitch, the legation says, is on his way to Geneva and stopped off at Venice only to confer with Signor Antonievitch, the Serbian Minister to Rome, who is conducting the Fiume negotiations for his Government. These negotiations are now proceeding so satisfactorily, it was stated, that no personal intervention of the Yugoslav Foreign Minister is required for the present.

It is authoritatively confirmed that an agreement on the Fiume issue has practically been reached between Rome and Belgrade and will shortly be announced on the following basis:

First, Fiume passes under Italian sovereignty; second, the delta and Porto Barros pass under Yugoslavian sovereignty; third, Yugoslavia obtains a rectification of the frontier to the north of Fiume, which will put a few small villages under her sovereignty; fourth, Yugoslavia and Italy will respectively run Porto Barros and the harbor of Fiume for themselves, but all goods on their way to Yugoslavia will be allowed to pass duty free through the Fiume harbor.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns that negotiations for the stipulations of a commercial treaty between Italy and Yugoslavia are also far advanced, and that there never has been any question of Italy trying to induce Yugoslavia to bind herself not to have a war fleet in the Adriatic, as has been stated in some quarters.

Negotiations for a political and military alliance between the two countries have temporarily been abandoned, owing chiefly to the fact that public opinion in Yugoslavia is not ready for such a step, but the negotiations may be resumed at any moment as soon as conditions are favorable. It is rumored also that the Little Entente looked with small favor upon the prospect of a military alliance between Italy and Yugoslavia.

ROME, Sept. 24.—Premier Mussolini, seeking to facilitate communication with the Interallied Mission at Janina, which is investigating the killing of the Italian members of the Greco-Albanian Boundary Commission, has started an airplane service between Brindisi and Rome. This will make possible the sending of messages and receiving answers the same day.

ITALY WILL DEMAND GREEK FORFEIT MONEY

Allies Will Decide Today on the Disposal of 50,000,000 Lire Janina Murders Fund.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—The Conference Ambassadors tomorrow will consider the report of the allied commission which investigated the Janina murders and will have to decide whether the 50,000,000 lire deposited by Greece with the Swiss National Bank shall be turned over to Italy as an indemnity for failure to prosecute the hunt for the slayers of the Italian members of the Greco-Albanian boundary delimitation mission. No question is involved of Italy's evacuating the Island of Corfu on Sept. 27, but when they accepted the Conference of Ambassadors' verdict, the Italians stated that if the culprits were not arrested by the 27th, and if any doubt existed that Greece had not done her best to find them, the deposit would go to Italy. It is understood that the Italian Ambassador will ask for a forfeit of the 50,000,000 lire tomorrow.

TARANTO, Italian Naval Base, Sept. 24.—The cruiser San Marco sailed today for the Island of Corfu, in preparation for the evacuation of the island by the Italian forces, set for Sept. 27.

The second division of the fleet, composed of the dreadnoughts Andrea Doria and Caio Duilio, also left to join the first division under Admiral Solari for manoeuvres.

Twenty-five publishers, from all parts of the United States, are represented at the convention.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, September 22, on shipments sold out, ranged from 10.00 cents to 21.00 cents per pound and averaged 15.81 cents per pound.—Advt.

LAHEY TAKES ISSUE WITH 2 INSPECTORS

Swears Police Inquiry Record, Repudiated by O'Brien and O'Connor, Is Correct.

THOR SHOWS BANK BOOKS

Ex-Inspector Says Deposit of $5,805 Was Collected for Sufferers in Ireland.

Sections of the record of the Police Department inquiry into the so-called Petrucci liquor case which were repudiated by Inspectors John O'Brien and John W. O'Connor in their testimony before Judge Crain in the criminal libel proceedings brought by Commissioner Enright against Magistrate Corrigan and Assemblyman Cuvillier, were identified by Chief Inspector William J. Lahey yesterday as correct transcripts of statements which the two Inspectors had made at the departmental inquiry.

Chief Inspector Lahey was recalled as a witness after Inspector O'Brien, preceding him on the stand, had reiterated his assertion that many of the questions shown on the record had not been asked and that he made no such answers as those attributed to him. Inspector O'Connor, who was named with Inspector O'Brien and former Inspector Alfred W. Thor as alleged owner of a quantity of liquor held up by two detectives, had likewise repudiated many of the questions and answers attributed to him.

John D. Lindsay, counsel for Magistrate Corrigan, asked Inspector Lahey to study the testimony of O'Brien, O'Connor and Thor carefully. After he had done so, Mr. Lindsay asked: "Is that a correct record of the testimony?" "To the best of my recollection it is," Lahey replied.

"Surprise Witness" Missing.

The program for yesterday's hearing was blocked by the non-appearance of the "surprise witness" which Assistant District Attorney Pecora had expected to produce. It was said that the witness probably would appear later in the week. Mr. Lindsay, just before the close of the proceedings yesterday, intimated that obstacles were being placed in the way of witnesses who were being sought by the defense, but Judge Crain said that he had seen no such indication on the part of Commissioner Enright. Mr. Lindsay also attempted to introduce in evidence records of Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield's inquiry into a raid on Morris H. Elvidge's apartment on Riverside Drive about a year ago.

"You are not holding the Police Commissioner responsible for the Commissioner of Accounts' action in this case, are you?" asked Mr. Pecora.

"I am," replied Mr. Lindsay.

"I think you are going too far afield," said Judge Crain.

Mr. Lindsay contended that the records which he sought to place in evidence bore directly on activities of the police in bootlegging cases, but Judge Crain held to his ruling that the evidence was inadmissible.

Thor Shows Bank Accounts.

The accounts of ex-Inspector Thor with the Corn Exchange and Irving National Banks were offered in evidence yesterday. Thor was questioned as to two items of the deposits in the Corn Exchange Bank—both in May, 1921. One item of $5,805, he declared, represented money collected by the Police Department for the relief of sufferers in Ireland and another of $912 money collected for the Salvation Army at the same meeting. In both cases, Thor said, the money had been withdrawn within a few days.

Patrolman Frank G. Wilson, assigned to duty in the office of Inspector O'Brien, was a witness yesterday. Wilson was first questioned about a raid for liquor at the home of Mrs. Delia Taft in Sherman Avenue, Brooklyn, in February. Patrolman Alfred V. Pitt, who accompanied Wilson on the raid, was transferred and demoted the day following it, after, according to the testimony of previous witnesses, Mrs. Taft had declared that Pitt would be "broken."

After Chief Inspector Lahey's identification of the record of his inquiry, Inspector O'Brien was recalled to the stand.

"Do you adhere to the testimony that some of the questions and your answers read to you from the record were never asked or given during the Lahey inquiry?" Mr. Lindsay asked.

"I do," declared the Inspector, with the qualification that I made at the time I testified, that had the questions been asked I would have answered as the record shows."

"Do you deny making the statements or do you say that you do not remember making them?"

"I have no recollection of many of the questions and the answers in that record."

Inspector O'Brien said his appearance before Inspector Lahey was very brief and that he could not have given all of the testimony which the record showed.

The hearings will be resumed at 10:30 this morning.

ARIZONA PROPOSES NEW POWER COMPACT

Unwilling to Ratify Colorado River Agreement, But Wants a State-Owned Enterprise.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The State of Arizona is unalterably opposed to ratification of the Colorado River water power agreement in its present form, but is willing to assist in drawing up a new agreement, the Federal Power Commission was informed today by a committee headed by Governor Hunt.

The compact as now drawn violates the doctrine of prior appropriation laid down by the Supreme Court in the Wyoming-Colorado agreement, Arizona contended, and would allocate an unequitable share of water in perpetuity to the upper basin.

Disclosing for the first time the so-called Arizona plan, the committee said this contemplated the development of the Colorado River lying within the State by the "Arizona State Power Corporation," which would be "a State-owned, operated and controlled enterprise."

HANSEN TRIAL POSTPONED.

Mineola Judge Sets Oct. 1 for Case Against Finger Print Expert.

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 24.—A postponement of the trial of Charles W. Hansen, former county finger print expert, was granted today by County Judge Lewis J. Smith on application of Attorney Neil H. Vandewater. District Attorney Weeks agreed to the delay.

Mr. Vandewater explained that Martin W. Littleton has been engaged in the defense, but that he will not return from Europe until the latter part of October. Mr. Vandewater asked that the trial be set for Nov. 15. Judge Smith, however, set the trial over tentatively to Oct. 1. A further postponement probably will be permitted on that day.

Hansen was indicted on two counts, one of grand larceny, second degree, and the other alleging unlawfully taking fees and extortion.

Cigarette Smokers Who Inhale, Tests Show, Absorb 8 Times as Much Nicotine as Others

ERLANGEN, Bavaria, Sept. 24.—Cigarette smokers who inhale take eight times as much nicotine into their systems as those who do not, according to Professor R. Heinz of Erlangen University in an article on the results of extensive experiments with tobacco users, in the Deutsche Medizinische Wochenschrift.

Professor Heinz holds that the reason pipe smoking is often less baneful in its effects upon the human system than cigarette smoking is that pipe smokers seldom take the smoke into their lungs. Consequently the nicotine finds its way into the blood only in the mouth and upper throat, while inhalation exposes the delicate surfaces of the lungs to the poison and impregnates the blood more rapidly.

Dry cigars are much less poisonous than damp cigars, according to Professor Heinz, whose experiments showed that in dry tobacco much more of the nicotine is consumed by the fire. Chewing tobacco and snuff which he tested contained little nicotine.

Extensive tests made upon British cigarettes disproved charges that they contained opium, but showed that they were heavier in nicotine content than German brands. The percentage of nicotine in Havana cigar tobacco was found to be less than in cigarette tobacco. Smokers under investigation in Professor Heinz's laboratory took .004 grams of nicotine into their systems from every 5 grams of ordinary cigarette tobacco if they merely took the smoke into their mouths, but the amount of nicotine was .035 when they inhaled. This explains, in the opinion of Professor Heinz, the serious consequences of excessive cigarette smoking, as he found that habitual users of large quantities of cigarettes daily generally get little satisfaction out of mouth smoking, but take the smoke into their beings with baneful effect upon the heart and health.

STOCK OF SINALOA IN BANKRUPT ASSETS

All-America Brokers, Inc., Files Voluntary Petition in Federal Court.

BLAME LITIGATION TANGLE

Head of Concern Also Is Director of Exploration Company—Liabilities $16,327.

The trail of troubles revolving around the Sinaloa Exploration and Development Company was lengthened yesterday when a voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the Federal District Court by the All-America Brokers, Inc., general merchandise brokers, of 19 West Forty-fourth Street. In his petition President Robert M. Feeley, also a director of the Sinaloa gold mining enterprise, gave the liabilities as $16,327 and the assets as $12,000. Among the latter were listed 200 shares of the capital stock of the Sinaloa.

The Sinaloa recently went into the hands of equity receivers. Snitkin & Goodman, counsel for the All-America Brokers, Inc., attributed the failure to poor business and to the Sinaloa situation.

George V. S. Williams was appointed Sept. 15 as equity receiver for Sinaloa on complaint of Feeley, James Ward and Hugh Lavery, all stockholders and directors, that Philip Francis, the President, conducted the company's affairs for his own benefit, diverted its funds and did many other acts injurious to the corporation. Ten days before, on complaint of Francis, Robert M. Feeley was arrested on a charge of attempted grand larceny, and twelve others were accused of acting in concert with him. They were released in $1,000 bail each. Lavery and Ward were among those arrested. Francis charged they broke open a compartment in the company's safe at 25 West Forty-third Street to obtain records.

On application of the Attorney General, Supreme Court Justice Nathan Bijur on July 26 issued a temporary injunction restraining Sinaloa from further stock sales. On the company's promise to include in future advertisements a statement of liabilities as well as of assets, the Attorney General withdrew the proceedings eventually. There was no charge that the company lacked funds or that it was failing to prosper. The injunction was the result of a complaint by James S. Keily, a stock broker.

Keily and State Senator John A. Hastings, in a previous action in Brooklyn, filed affidavits charging that Francis, to stimulate Sinaloa sales, paid a dividend out of funds received from stock sales. Hastings was Secretary and Treasurer of the All-America Brokers, Inc., in whose offices also were the headquarters of the All-America Insurance Company, Inc. The Brooklyn proceedings, which involved the seeking of an injunction to restrain Keily from interfering with the conduct of the business of the All-America Investment Company, Inc., of the same offices, revealed that officers of the insurance concern were involved in a struggle to gain control of these various enterprises and of $500,000 worth of Sinaloa stock.

Senator Hastings, who had been connected with Sinaloa, made a speech in the Senate last Spring in which he accused Francis and others of "planting" narcotics in his room in the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany. Two weeks ago Senator Hastings withdrew this charge and made public apology.

Keily, who was Vice President of the All-America Brokers, Inc., headed in 1921 the All-America Film Company, at the same address, which put out a movie production, "The Spirit of '76," that was branded during the war as anti-British and therefore a deterrent to recruiting for the American Army. For producing this film in war time Robert Goldstein, the producer, was sentenced under the Espionage act to ten years in prison and a fine of $5,000. Later, President Wilson remitted the fine and commuted the sentence to three years.

MORE EARTH SHOCKS ARE FELT IN PERSIA

Property Damaged in Kerman—123 Killed, 100 Injured, in Last Week's Tremors.

SIMLA, British India, Sept. 24.—A severe earthquake was felt in Kerman, Persia, last night. Considerable damage was done to buildings, but there was no loss of life.

The first shock lasted for two minutes, followed by four additional tremors over a period of ninety minutes. Slight tremblings were noticed this morning.

The shock was felt at several other towns.

TEHERAN, Persia, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—Several villages in the vicinity of Bujnurd are reported to have been destroyed, with casualties as far as known of 123 dead and about 106 injured, in the earthquake which shook the region last Thursday, according to dispatches reaching here. The shocks are continuing.

Damage is also reported in the district of Shirvan.

MAGNUS JOHNSON COMING.

To Speak Here Before Progressive Labor League Meeting.

Labor and civic organizations of the city, as well as liberal groups, will be represented at a meeting to be held at Carnegie Hall next Saturday evening, Sept. 29, at which Senator Magnus Johnson of Minnesota will make his first speech before an Eastern audience. It will be held under the auspices of the Progressive Labor League. Norman Hapgood will preside.

The Johnson meeting is expected to mark the beginning of a powerful get-together movement between Western farmers and labor and liberal groups in the East. Senator Johnson is expected to discuss the identity of interests between producers in farm and factory. He is said to have been impressed with a rising demand for a labor bloc, which it is understood will be launched in time for the Congressional election next year.

10,000,000 WOMEN LINED UP AS DRYS

Forty Delegates of National Groups Pledge Support of Prohibition Ticket.

TO ORGANIZE FOR 1924

Plan to Distribute 1,000,000 Copies of Anti-Liquor Booklet in Campaign.

"The Nineteenth Amendment must come to the aid of the Eighteenth," was the slogan of forty delegates of the principal women's organizations in the country, representing an aggregate of 10,000,000 women, who met yesterday at 25 Madison Avenue as the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement.

The delegates, after endorsing the record of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania and reporting on prohibition sentiment, decided on definite political organization of their members, pledging them to vote for dry candidates, regardless of party, for every office from alderman to President in the 1924 election. To crystallize sentiment into action it was decided to make use of a booklet, edited for the committee by Mrs. William Tilton of Cambridge, Mass., entitled "Save America."

These women's organizations are already pledged to give the widest possible circulation among their members to this brochure, which is described as a sort of prohibition symposium, containing special and reprinted articles by Ida M. Tarbell, Commander Evangeline Booth and Lady Astor. This booklet costs 10 cents, but will retail at 25 cents, the profits going to the campaign fund of the committee. This slogan was adopted: "Sell 1,000,000 copies and save America."

In addition to the arguments and programs developed in this official publication, a calendar of actual organization is set forth. The feature of this calendar, which begins in October, is the organization of "registration rallies" in the Spring of 1924, with the object of getting pledged prohibition men and women voters in a position to impose their will in the coming election.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay declared women should vote for drys, whether Democrats or Republicans. Mrs. Tilton referred to the prohibition struggle as a battle for race survival.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, President of the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions, was elected chairman of the committee, Mrs. Edward Franklin White, vice chairman; Mrs. Fennell P. Turner, secretary; Miss Hilda Olson, treasurer, and Mrs. Tilton, editor. After deciding on regional directors in five districts, into which the country will be divided for campaign purposes, the committee adjourned.

PATROL STARTS HUNT FOR CANYON EXPLORERS

Boat Found Floating Down Colorado River Was Not Used by the Survey Party.

PEACH SPRINGS, Ariz., Sept. 24.—A patrol penetrated the Grand Canyon at a point sixty miles above Diamond Creek, Arizona, today to scout the Colorado River for the United States Geological Survey party which is on a voyage charting the river.

Diamond Creek is the next point of habitation with which the exploring party is to come in contact, the schedule calling for their arrival on Sept. 28.

Two Deputy Sheriffs of Mohave County, veteran cow men, left this morning with several Indians to search the country north of Peach Springs along the river in the belief that the surveyors may have camped there recently.

Returning here after a survey of the canyon near here, patrol scouts asserted that the river still was on a rampage, shooting water fifty feet into the air as it struck boulders in its narrow bed.

The scouts cut short their search on word from R. W. Birdseye of the United States Geological Survey, instructing them not to venture too far into the canyon. They found no trace of the surveyors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The round bottom boat seen floating down the Colorado River near Catherine Mine, Ariz., was not the style of craft used by Colonel C. H. Birdseye, who was making a trip through the Grand Canyon, a telegram announced to the Geological Survey today. The boat, according to the message, was of the design used by the Geological Survey last year and had been abandoned after completing of surveys.

BABY KILLED BY GAS.

Mother Is Found Unconscious With Stove Burner Turned On.

In a crib where he had been placed while his mother cooked supper, Jacob Nuran, one year old, was found dead when Patrolman Patrick Murray of the Bathgate Avenue station last night broke into the apartment on the third floor of 1,446 Webster Avenue, the Bronx. The child's mother, Mrs. Lena Nuran, 26 years old, was found unconscious on the kitchen floor and was taken to Lincoln Hospital by Dr. Rothman.

Neighbors smelled gas fumes and summoned the patrolman. Mrs. Nuran was holding a freshly plucked chicken when found and a gas burner on the stove was fully opened. It was believed that while she was preparing the chicken for cooking the gas blew out and she was overcome by the fumes before she became aware of what had happened.

Dentist Accused by Girl Is Freed.

Dr. Morris Roller, a dentist, of 170 East Seventy-second Street, was discharged in the Harlem Court yesterday by Magistrate Edward Weil for lack of evidence after he had been charged with attempting to assault Miss Anna Kopp, 19 years old, of 365 Lenox Avenue. She alleged that he attacked her when she went to his office to have a tooth extracted.

FINDS 'FIANCE' WED AND IN HER OLD HOME

Katherine Kaelraed, Actress-Wife of Playwright, Brings $15,000 Larceny Charge.

BOUGHT HER FLAT, HE SAYS

Defendant, Italian Captain, Shows Bill of Sale, but She Says He Got It by Ruse.

To return from Europe to find the man she expected to marry already married to another and in possession of her goods and the apartment for which she had paid the rent is the experience alleged by Mrs. Katherine Benrimo, wife of J. Harry Benrimo, actor and author of "The Yellow Jacket," when she appeared yesterday in the Yorkville Court against Umberto Bellini, a former Captain in the Italian Army. She charged the Captain with grand larceny, and Magistrate Sweetser held him in $5,000 for examination today. He denied the charge.

The story began, she told the Court, at a dinner given at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in March, where she met Bellini. The latter was attentive to her, and the friendship that began at dinner developed so rapidly that they were engaged in April, she said. In June she sailed for England. She had intended, she said, to obtain a divorce from Benrimo in England and then to return and marry Bellini. Instead, she said, she went to a Continental health resort. While there she "got to thinking about" the affair, and decided to return to New York. She wrote Bellini of the change in her plans.

Before going abroad, she said, they had decided that after their marriage she and the Captain would occupy her apartment at 1 East Fifty-sixth Street. It had been decided that the apartment would have to be enlarged and so, in order that the Captain might have a free hand in making the repairs, she said, she gave Bellini possession of the apartment and the furniture and other effects, upon which she now placed a valuation of $15,000. She signed a paper at the request of the Captain, she charged, and from the evidence presented in court this paper was not a power of attorney but was in the form of a bill of sale. In addition she gave him $6,000 in various amounts, she charged, which was to have gone toward financing Bellini in an advertising business.

Mrs. Benrimo said that she returned from abroad to find that on July 3, a few weeks after she had left, Bellini had married Eugenia Patterson, a sister of Livingston Fairbanks, of Chicago. They are now living at the Fifty-sixth Street apartment, she said, the rent of which she had paid up to Oct. 1.

Mrs. Benrimo was represented by John B. Stanchfield and Abel R. Smith of 120 Broadway. Mrs. Benrimo is now living at 35 Exeter Street, Forest Hills, L. I. Her testimony was corroborated by her sister, Virgina Boor, also of Forest Hills, who testified that she had appealed to Bellini to give up the apartment and furnishings when she heard of his marriage, but he had refused.

Captain Bellini testified that he had in fact bought the apartment and its effects for $100 in cash and 2,000 shares of stock in an unlisted company. Mrs. Benrimo said that although these items of payment appeared in the bill of sale they were not there when she signed it. She added that she had never received $100 and the shares of stock had apparently been slipped into her suitcase when she left the house to sail for England.

In America Only Sixteen Months.

The defendant said he was a native of Fiume and that he had been in America sixteen months.

"You have been here long enough to get away with that property," commented Magistrate Sweetser.

Captain Bellini first came to public attention last January, when he reported that three valuable paintings had been stolen from his Beacon Hill apartment in Boston. They had been taken, he told the police, by an Italian who had come to him from Rome with letters of introduction. One was a Madonna by Da Vinci and the other, "The Last Supper," by an unknown artist, the third a group of "The Holy Family" by Gentile di Fabrizzi. When the paintings were recovered in a pawnshop later art authorities expressed the opinion that none of them was by an artist of the highest rank, although they were of considerable value.

Captain Bellini came to New York later and lived for a time at the Waldorf-Astoria. He said that Mrs. Benrimo knew of his engagement, for she had learned of it at the dinner at which they met.

Mrs. Benrimo was Katherine Kaelraed, an actress. She was married to Mr. Benrimo in January, 1915. In August of 1915 Benrimo was sued for divorce by Helen Robertson, his second wife. He had been much in the courts because of the question as to whether he had been properly divorced from his first wife, Fay Lewis.

COULD NOT FLY TO POLE.

Amundsen Plane Was Unable to Carry Enough Gasoline for Trip.

SEATTLE, Sept. 23.—What Haakon H. Hammer, business representative of Captain Roald Amundsen, called "the true story" of why an attempt by Captain Amundsen to fly over the North Pole last Summer was abandoned, was told yesterday by Hammer and Lieutenant Oskar Omdahl, aviator in the project.

Mr. Hammer and Lieutenant Omdahl said that Captain Amundsen had been led to believe that the plane could fly for twenty-two hours with one stock of gasoline, whereas its capacity was only eighteen hours.

Mr. Hammer declared that a break in the landing gear of the plane, to which abandonment of the attempt of Captain Amundsen and Lieutenant Omdahl at Wainwright, Alaska, on the Arctice Coast, had been previously attributed, was a minor difficulty that could readily have been overcome. Lieutenant Omdahl said that tests showed that the machine could not fly when carrying 160 gallons of gasoline and a passenger, whereas 320 gallons were required for the 2,100-mile flight over the pole.

MUSHROOMS KILL TWO.

Nine Other Persons in Baltimore Ill After Feasting on Fungi.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24.—One woman is dead here and nine other persons are ill from eating poisonous mushrooms. Thomas C. Hege, a Baltimorean, died yesterday in Washington from the same cause, the police believe. The dead woman is Mrs. Annie Schlinski.

Stephen Kraz and Vincent Neleiska are still seriously ill from eating the fungi, which Kraz bought at a grocery as edible mushrooms.

Judge Refuses to Marry Girl to Confessed Thief

When John Demonte, 19 years old, of 2,526 East Sixteenth Street, who pleaded guilty a week ago to having robbed a tool shed, came before Judge Burt J. Humphrey in Queens County Court yesterday the Judge asked him if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed. Demonte's attorney stepped forward and said:

"I have been asked by the mother and sweetheart of this boy to request that you defer sentence just long enough to marry him and his sweetheart who is now in the court room." Judge Humphrey was taken back by the request and then replied: "This boy has committed a serious crime and is liable to a long jail sentence, and I do not feel that I want to tie any woman to a criminal for life." Then he sentenced him to a term in the Elmira Reformatory.

Demonte's sweetheart, Virginia Iannaconni, 19 years old, sat in the rear of the courtroom and heard the sentence. Afterward she stated that she will wait until Demonte is free and marry him then. She lives at 426 West Thirty-third Street, Manhattan.

PRINCETON TO OPEN 177TH YEAR TODAY

Incomplete Registration Shows Approximately as Many Freshmen as Last Year.

APPLICANTS SET RECORD

1,200 Seek Admission and 600 More Apply as Transfer Students.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 24.—The formal opening exercises of Princeton University's 177th academic year will take place tomorrow afternoon in Alexander Hall, with President John Grier Hibben delivering the opening address. President and Mrs. Hibben landed in New York yesterday on the Adriatic, after a trip on the Continent.

While final figures on registration are unavailable, Professor Christian Gauss, Director of Information, announced that the freshman class will in all probability approximate that of last year, as more than six hundred have already been admitted and the Committee on Admissions is still in session. Competition for the entering class this year was more severe than ever before, 1,200 applications having been received. Of the students transferring to all classes from other colleges, some forty have been passed. Six hundred and eleven men have actually been admitted to the first year class and fifteen more may be admitted on trial. In considering the candidates the choice has been made primarily on their entrance examination records, although the school records also received careful attention. Since the psychological tests, given last year for the first time, proved to be so indicative of the student's later record in college, they have been stressed more than before in considering the present class. In addition to the 1,200 men who applied for admission to the freshman class there were 600 candidates for transfer, making a greater number of applicants than ever before.

A meeting of the freshman class was held this afternoon in McCosh Hall, at which the transfer students also were in attendance. The campus is rapidly filling with returning upper classmen.

Professor Paul Van Dyke of the history department has returned from a two-year term in Paris as the head of the American University Union. Four newly appointed professors are announced. These are: Professor Edward Raymond Bossange, from the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, who will take the place of the late Howard Crosby Butler as head of the School of Architecture; Frank L. Eidman, to be associate Professor of Machine Design and Industrial Practice; Frank A. Heacock, to be assistant Professor of Graphics and Engineering Drawing, and Richard Montgomery Field to be assistant Professor of Geology.

SAYS ACADEMIC VIEWS WILL GAIN INFLUENCE

Vassar Head Declares Colleges Soon Will Lead, Instead of Upholding Unpopular Cause.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Academic judgments of colleges will be valued by the people of the country in years to come, who will turn to the colleges and universities for light, President Henry Noble MacCracken of Vassar College, declared at convocation exercises here this morning.

Speaking on "The Remoter Environment of Vassar," Dr. MacCracken reviewed the association of Vassar students with world movements and noted that this year the college will again participate in an informal poll on World Court sentiment during Armistice Week.

"I must confess it does not always reassure us when we sem to vote on the unpopular side," said Dr. MacCracken with reference to Vassar's enthusiastic support of the movement for a World Court. "Perhaps it is our fault that something derogatory attaches to the word 'academic.' We are going to rid ourselves of it and make academic judgments valued at our fellow-citizens, so that they will turn to our judgments with at least as much attention as the people of a neighboring valley over here to the East night before last turned to a flaming cross on a hillside and realized that the Ku Klux Klan was also in this environment, along with Washington Irving and Hendrick Hudson."

ABRAHAM & STRAUS EN FETE

Brooklyn Firm Gives Luncheon for Fifty-Eighth Anniversary.

Many men prominent in various walks of life were the guests yesterday of Abraham & Straus in Brooklyn at a luncheon to celebrate the opening of their remodeled department store. The event marked the firm's fifty-eighth anniversary, and the program included a tour of inspection of the building.

The new florist shop, drug store, men's shop, escalators and new display cases caused favorable comment. An interesting exhibit was that of silk weaving and pottery in the making. A loom in operation was on view in the court of silks, and pottery in every stage, from the clay to the finished product, was displayed in the new china salons on the subway floor.

It has been estimated that the floor space of the small shop at 297 Fulton Street, where the firm of Abraham & Wechsler was housed in 1865, is about equal to the space occupied by the soda fountain in the store of Abraham & Straus today.

GORGAS PLANT SOLD BY THE GOVERNMENT

Ford's Muscle Shoals Offer Is Upset and He Will Not Revise It.

ALABAMA COMPANY BUYER

Sale for $3,472,000 Was Forced by Expiration of Government Option on Plant.

FORD MADE NO SUGGESTION

Weeks Declares the United States Has Successfully Salvaged Its Interest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The Gorgas steam plant, built by the Government during the war to furnish auxiliary power at Muscle Shoals, was sold today to the Alabama Power Company for $3,472,487.25. The sale was concluded by Secretary Weeks after the power company had refused to extend the time for the Government to exercise its option to remove the plant from its land or sell it to the company.

Henry Ford, who had offered $5,000,000 for the Muscle Shoals plant, including the Gorgas unit, was notified of the legal obligation resting on the Government, which had bound itself to remove the steam unit from the land of the Alabama Power Company or sell it to the company. The time limit for such action expired many months ago, but the power company extended it from time to time.

Mr. Ford was informed of this contract on Sept. 11 and asked that the time be extended to Nov. 1 so that he and his engineers might decide whether this unit was essential to the successful operation of Muscle Shoals. Thomas W. Martin, President of the Alabama company, extended the time to Sept. 24, but declined to grant an extension to Nov. 1.

On Sept. 21 W. B. Mayo, Mr. Ford's engineer, telegraphed the Secretary of War, expressing surprise that the extension was not granted, and saying:

"Mr. Ford is now away and is not expected to return for a week or ten days. Will take up matter immediately with him then and advise you."

Weeks Obliged to Sell.

Mr. Ford made no further move, it was announced, and accordingly, Mr. Weeks took the only action possible, upon the advice of the Attorney General and the Adjutant General of the Army, and announced this action as follows:

"The Secretary of War announced today that the United States had sold to the Alabama Power Company the Warrior extension and appurtenances at Gorgas and power transmission line from the plant to Sheffield, Ala., for $3,472,487.25 cash, and the deed had been delivered.

"Under a contract with the Alabama Power Company the Government acquired the right to use temporarily the land of that company, upon which the Government erected an addition to one of the company's steam plants and a transmission line from that plant to Sheffield, at a total wartime cost of about $4,750,000. Under the terms of the contract, the company some time ago served notice on the Government to either remove the property from the land of the company or to sell to the company at a fair, appraised value.

"The Secretary of War was advised by both the Judge Advocate General of the Army and the Attorney General that the former Secretary of War was authorized to contract for the temporary use of the lands of the company, to place Government buildings and machinery thereon, and to stipulate for their removal and the restoration of the lands to the owner in their former condition, as provided in the contract. This advice was given notwithstanding opinions had been given previously rendering certain other provisions of the contract invalid. To remove the property would have meant the loss by the Government of substantially all of the investment, hence the determination to sell.

Tells of Fair Valuation.

"The Secretary of War had the advice of experts from the Ordnance Department and the Federal Power Commission in arriving at a fair value of the properties.

"Before making the sale, the Secretary of War advised Mr. Henry Ford of the situation and of the opinion of the Attorney General, and asked Mr. Ford for any suggestions he or his attorneys might offer; but none was made. Under the circumstances no other course was open to the Government but to sell to the Alabama Power Company, and it has thereby succeeded in successfully salvaging its interest in the Gorgas property."

Army engineers say the auxiliary steam plant sold today is not essential to the operation of Muscle Shoals. It was built as a war measure when the Government could not afford to take any chances of a lack of power in the making of nitrates at Muscle Shoals. The engineers, however, are emphatic in saying that the plant would not be needed under normal conditions such as Mr. Ford proposes, namely, the making of fertilizer for farmers.

Mr. Ford offered $5,000,000 for Muscle Shoals, which offer is generally supposed to include the Gorgas plant, although the wording of his offer is variously interpreted, and by some is read as not to include the Gorgas unit. But the present sale, according to many, will force him to revise his offer.

Ford Won't Make New Offer.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 24.—Henry Ford will not make a revised offer for the Government nitrate properties and water power project at Muscle Shoals, Ala., it was stated at his office today.

A report from Washington said that Secretary of War Weeks and President Coolidge conferred at the White House today with respect to Muscle Shoals and declined to disclose a telegram received from Mr. Ford's office.

That telegram, a Ford official said, probably was a wire notifying Mr. Weeks and the President that Mr. Ford is absent from Detroit.

"So far as I know, there has been no new offer and there will be none," the official asserted.

B. R. T. PAYING OFF CLAIMS.

Old Company Begins to Liquidate $2,200,000 in Obligations.

Payment of all claims against the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company arising before the reorganization and the formation of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation was begun yesterday at 85 Clinton Street, Brooklyn.

There are about 3,200 claims amounting to more than $2,200,000. One thousand of the claims are against the New York Consolidated Railway and include $1,600,000, those arising from the Malbone Street disaster. The amounts already have been determined either by agreement or by the courts.

THE PLAY

By JOHN CORBIN.

A LESSON IN LOVE, a comedy in three acts, by Rudolf Besier and May Edginton. At the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre.

Captain Andre Briquette	William Faversham
Beatrice Audley	Emily Stevens
Dean Carey	Edward Emery
Sir Nevill Moreton	Hugh Buckler
Mrs. Carey	Grace Henderson
Laura Westerly	Gilda Leary
[illegible]	Marian Hutchins
Walter	F. S. Merlin

The Taming of the Prude.

The so-called comedy by the authors of "Secrets" promised in the first act to be a very interesting thesis play, contrasting English with French ideas of love. It presently developed into stirring emotional drama with more than a hint of tragedy. Only in the last five minutes did it justify its description on the program, ending happily to the glory of all concerned in it and in entire accord with the probabilities of life but somewhat to the discredit of the seeming pretensions of the first act.

"A Lesson in Love" is so far from being an international homily as to be a quite personal episode. Without apologies to Shakespeare it might have been called "The Taming of the Prude." Beatrice Audley (Emily Stevens) is a rather conventional English woman, the product of the cathedral close, who has aroused romantic adoration in a French explorer of the Marchand type (William Faversham). A suitable time after the death of her husband, this Captain Briquette (who, unlike the humble briquette de charbon, is pronounced Brickay) turns up in the cathedral close to find that, in reality, Beatrice is something more than English in the torpor of her ideas of love and decidedly more than Victorian in the frigidity of her moral conventions.

Before the Captain's astonished eyes, Beatrice cruelly cuts a girlhood friend who has loved unwisely but heroically. Precisely what goes on in the heroic Frenchman's mind is withheld from the audience—which is why the play seemed now one thing and now another that it really wasn't. This being the case, it would be as ill-advised to disclose it as in the case of any other mystery play. Suffice it to say that the characters are freshly rendered, the action is quite plausible and, except for a few early passages of irrelevant discussion of national traits, of absorbing interest.

The acting was capable throughout. For once Emily Stevens has a comprehensibly human part. She carried a highly emotional scene with uncommon truth and vigor. Mr. Faversham confessed in a graceful curtain scene that he was not altogether at ease with his accent; but he was plausible and engaging, if lacking somewhat in subtlety and forthright simplicity of characterization.

The most nearly perfect performances were in the subordinate parts. As the martyr to an illicit love, Gilda Leary was admirably direct and poignant. As the aged Dean Cary, in but not of the Cathedral close, Edward Emery was an unalloyed delight.

"CHICKEN FEED" FINE FUN.

Guy Bolton's Comedy of Village Life Has Charm.

CHICKEN FEED, a comedy in three acts, by Guy Bolton. At the Little Theatre.

Jim Bailey	Frank McCormack
Annie Bailey	Marie Day
Luella Logan	Leila Bennett
Hughie Logan	Arthur Aylsworth
Danny Kester	Stuart Fox
Nell Bailey	Roberta Arnold
Chester Logan	Frank Allworth
Mr. Tevis	Mart Fuller Golden
Judge McLean	Sam Reed
Oscar	Bert West
Miss Johnson	Katherine Wilson
Harry Taylor	George Spelvin

There was a distinct atmosphere of "The First Year" about the Little Theatre last night at the opening of "Chicken Feed," with Roberta Arnold, staged by Winchell Smith and under the management of John Golden. That Guy Bolton instead of Frank Craven was the author only slightly spoils the analogy, and to about the same extent is the new play inferior to "The First Year."

It is a thesis play that Mr. Bolton might have written, but his thesis is lost in the welter of village incidents, village folk and village wiles and stratagems that give his new work its charm and appeal. In brief, Mr. Bolton has written a play about three women who, in desperation, strike when their appeals to their husbands and sweethearts for a fair division of the family incomes and prospects fail. The dramatist of the boulevards and the linden would have called in the strikebreakers, with no end of merry double entendres. Mr. Bolton, however, obscures his argument, to make a Golden holiday, and leaves the final issues undetermined, save that happy reconciliations are obvious.

Roberta Arnold, of course, is glorious. She is the type of a thousand maidens, determinedly laying down the law of the younger generation and the new morality on a thousand suburban porches. No other among American actresses is more plausibly natural than she, and not another is her equal in the effect of the ready tear and the readier smile of forgiveness.

Leila Bennett made the most of a very grateful rôle, filled to the brim with nifties, as the Broadway patois has it.

The rest of the cast was competent throughout. Arthur Aylsworth, Frank McCormack and Frank Allworth even seemed to rise a bit above the general high level.

"If there weren't any women," says one of the strikers, "who'd mend your clothes?"

"If there weren't any women," says the young man triumphantly, "I wouldn't wear any clothes."

There are many such merry moments in the new play, and few dull ones. Occasionally the action and the dialogue are uneven. For the very most part, however, "Chicken Feed" is splendid fun and deserves the success it will probably have.

ELDA VETTORI'S DEBUT.

New American Soprano Sings Santuzza at the Century.

The San Carlo singers opened their second week at the Century last night with "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci," and for the second time a new American soprano, in this case Italian-American. The new Santuzza, who was warmly welcomed, was Elda Vettori, born in Venice and brought as an orphan to relatives in St. Louis. There she grew up, became a milliner—like Mimi or Louise—and, disclosing a voice, sang in Summer seasons at the Delmar Gardens till she came recently to New York.

Miss Vettori's is one of those natural voices, low and sweet, with all the velvet of youth in its quality and a touch of ventriloquism in its carrying power. She was applauded in the Easter "Alleluia," admirably sung with Mr. Gallo's vigorous chorus and in dramatic scenes that never were stagy. With her sang Salazar, Interrante, Mmes. Paggi and Alice Homer, and Peroni conducted Mascagni's opera, as he also did that of Leoncavallo, with Mme. Charlebois, Messrs. Tommasini and Basiola.

FIREMEN'S FEATS FILMED.

Thousands Watch "Rescues" to Be Shown in the Movies.

Several thousand persons gathered at 127th Street and Second Avenue last night to witness a moving picture film being taken of the Fire Department rescue squad at work.

The firemen brought men, women and children down ladders and fire escapes, while others jumped into life nets. Two actresses fainted and were attended by ambulance doctors from Bellevue Hospital. Reserves from several police precincts kept the crowd from interfering with the firemen. The films are to be shown this Winter for the benefit of the Fire Department.

The ring is made from gold washed from the sands of the Rhine and contains a quotation from the Nibelungen Ring.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Advance in Stocks, Irregularly Distributed—European Exchange Rates Rise Again.

For its bearing on the actual situation, the recovery in European exchange rates was the noteworthy incident on yesterday's financial markets. The cables brought no definite news of overtures from Germany to France, but the dispatches from Berlin over Sunday indicated unmistakably that the German Government had made up its mind to abandon resistance in the Ruhr (thus complying with the French condition precedent to resuming direct negotiations) and was merely pursuing the policy of prudence in allowing the German mind to get accustomed to the altered purpose.

The franc in particular rose nearly ¼ cent, its advance of the past four days exceeding half a cent and canceling not quite half of the decline which occurred between January and August. At London and Paris the rise of the franc was still more rapid. Exchange on London, Rome and Brussels advanced along with francs, though not so vigorously; the market's movement as a whole evidently reflected expectation of a formal diplomatic announcement by Germany at any moment.

What effect that announcement will produce on other financial markets, notably on the Stock Exchange, is a matter of conjecture; for one of the few unmistakable facts in the stock market's action of the past eight months is that it had not been governed, at any rate in its day-to-day fluctuation, by the vicissitudes of European politics. It is probable, therefore, that no such "bear account," based directly on belief in failure of all negotiations in the Ruhr, has existed in the stock market as in foreign exchange. The stock market is also apt to look a little further ahead and inquire as to economic consequences of the existing situation, especially in Germany, even if the Ruhr dispute is settled. Nevertheless a practical settlement, with Germany now seriously considering currency reform at home, would at least create a new situation which in some way all international markets, including the New York Stock Exchange, might have to measure.

Yesterday's stock market may or may not have been endeavoring to do this. Prices advanced, some of them rising in the end 2 points or more. But the advance was not altogether convincing; much of it resulted from the same class of professional speculation as forced prices down last week. It suggested little except continuance of the struggle between two not very important speculative factions, each of which has alternately been retreating before the other and chasing the other out.

There was nothing in the day's financial or industrial news to alter any one's judgment. All of the trade reviews published over Sunday confirmed the opinion that the Autumn revival of trade is proceeding very slowly. Even yesterday's cotton market seemed to share in this attitude; for the decline of more than one-third of a cent per pound, bringing the spot price a full cent below last Wednesday's figure, was plainly recognition that the present state of trade and attitude of the consumer of cotton goods were not such as to warrant expectation of continued heavy purchases by spinners if the price were to be held at the recent high level or were to go above it.

FRANC ADVANCES ON ATTITUDE OF GERMANY

International Speculators Buying—Sterling Falls Sharply at Paris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—The rise of the franc, which continued today, is a plain result of the Franco-German situation. The beginning of negotiations, which is now momentarily expected, will undoubtedly bring international speculation into the exchange market. Purchases by such speculators explain today's further rise in the franc, offsetting such adverse influences as the covering purchases by traders against Autumn purchases of foreign raw material and French subscriptions to the Belgian and Austrian loans.

LONDON, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—Prices were firmer on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols unchanged at 58 3-8; British 5 per cent. war loan ⅛ higher at 102¼; 4½ per cent. war loan unchanged at 97½.

Rand Mines 2¾, De Beers Mining 12⅝, both unchanged.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Prices were heavy on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 25 centimes higher at 57 francs 10 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan unchanged at 75 francs 5 centimes.

Exchange on London 3 francs 15 centimes lower at 74 francs per sovereign; American dollars were quoted at 16 francs 21½ centimes, against 16.96 last week.

GOLD DUST STOCK ON CURB.

Appears in Connection With American Cotton Oil Reorganization.

George K. Morrow, President of the American Cotton Oil Company, has sent stockholders an outline of the proposed reorganization plan. A new company, the Gold Dust Corporation, has been organized under New Jersey laws, and its stock will be issued in exchange for that of the Cotton Oil Company. One share of Gold Dust common will be issued for one share of the preferred stock of the American Cotton Oil Company, and one share of the new common stock of Gold Dust Company will be issued for three shares of American Cotton Oil common. The exchange will call for the issuance of 160,443 shares of the common stock of the new company out of an authorized issue of 325,000 shares, of no par value. The new company also will have an authorized issue of $5,000,000 non-cumulative preferred, non-voting 6 per cent. stock. The $8,000,000 notes of the American Cotton Oil Company, maturing next September, are expected to be taken care of by the sale of unprofitable plants.

The new common stock of Gold Dust Corporation was traded in on the Curb yesterday. It opened at 19¼ and advanced to 22, closing at the latter figure.

Road Asks Permits for Two Issues.

The Western Maryland Railway has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $5,800,000 five-year 7 per cent. notes. These are to be used to refund the $5,800,000 three-year notes that came due this year. The company has also requested the commission for permission to issue $8,700,000 first and refunding 5 per cent. mortgage bonds, to be used to secure the notes.

C. & A. to Pay Interest on Bonds.

Charles A. Peabody announced yesterday that the Chicago & Alton would pay the April interest on the 3 per cent. fifty-year gold bonds on or about Sept. 25. The announcement was made following the refusal of the United States District Court in Chicago to force the road to pay the preferred stockholders of the Kansas City, St. Louis & Chicago $600,000.

To Consider B. & O. Dividend.

The resumption of dividends on the common stock of the Baltimore & Ohio will be considered at the meeting of the directors tomorrow, according to a report in the financial district yesterday. The report of the directors after the June meeting intimated that the dividend might be resumed before the close of the year.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Further Rally in Stocks.

While the movement of prices as a whole on the Stock Exchange was irregular during the greater part of the day, exceptional strength developed in the last hour, which carried many stocks substantially above Saturday's closing level. The market was firm at the opening, due to the more favorable news from abroad. This initial strength, however, was short-lived, and by noon prices were again on the decline. Later on, despite the heaviness in the steel stocks, which are generally the market leaders, a new demand arose for the petroleum shares, which soon extended through the entire list and by the close even the steel stocks had regained their early losses in many instances. Gains of a point or more were numerous at the close. Trading was only moderately active.

The Recovery in the Oil Stocks.

The strength in the petroleum group yesterday was the cause for much comment in the financial district. It was recalled that these stocks led the downward movement last Spring and that they have been the first to advance or decline in every important market movement during the past few years. The greater part of the rise was understood to be for the account of covering short commitments. This covering was ascribed by some people to more favorable advices as to the situation in the "flush fields" of California, which have been chiefly responsible for the recent demoralization in the industry.

Action of Foreign Exchange.

The rather sweeping upward movement of the European exchanges yesterday carried sterling to the highest price since Aug. 17, francs to the highest since June 23, Italian lire to the highest since June 15. From its low level of the year sterling has now advanced 5⅞ cents, francs more than ¾ cents and the lira nearly ½ cent. The buying on which this considerable advance was scored, most of it during the past week, was ascribed in the foreign exchange market yesterday to covering of speculative sales for the decline, which had been made in large quantity on the assumption that a settlement in the Ruhr was impossible.

Blessings in Disguise.

The misfortunes which have overtaken the bond market during the past ten days, partly as a result of the disappearance of newspaper advertisements, are considered by some bankers as "blessings in disguise," because they have provided about the first opportunity for real competition and intensive selling of bond issues which have been encountered this year. The natural slackness of the market, the fact that new issues have been held back and that bankers have had no opportunity to extensively advertise their offerings have led to a revival of the old-time "personal canvass" by salesmen, who, up to this time, have in the main been doing their selling via telephone from swivel chairs. The results in some cases have been very surprising. The bond selling staff of one large institution sold more than a million and a half dollars' worth of bonds during the last week, most of them in one's, two's and three's, and in practically every case through personal visit to the prospective customer. Several other houses reported equally good results.

Call Money Rate Advances.

The call money rate yesterday again advanced to 5½ per cent., against a low rate of 4 per cent. on Friday and a low of 3½ per cent. last week. In banking circles the advance in the rate was attributed to the absorption of funds which had accumulated in this city during the recent tax payment period. On the other hand, there was reported to be a good demand for acceptances in this market from out-of-town banks and at the same time there was an easier tone to prime commercial bills. Prime grain bills yesterday were discounted on a basis of 5 per cent., although the market is still quoted at 5¼@5½, the reason for this being that the demand at 5 per cent. is not large enough to establish a market.

Concerning a Japanese Loan.

Throughout the financial district bankers are watching closely for a Japanese loan, which they feel certain will come sooner or later as the result of the earthquake. As yet, however, they are inclined to view the bond issue as still a problem for the distant future and admit that they have not been approached with any definite suggestions from the Japanese, although they are confident that a large portion of it will be offered in the United States. The idea prevails, judging from similar disasters in the past, that it will take the island residents several weeks to get the wreckage cleared away and to be in condition to prepare for reconstruction. Until that time arrives they will have no need for a large amount of funds. The estimate as to when Japan will be in the market for funds varies from one to several months, and the amount involved varies from $100,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

Beginning March 22, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1923 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

Don't Buy Mortgage Bonds
Without a Guarantee

REAL ESTATE MORTGAGE BONDS are being offered to investors yielding 6½%—7% and 7½%, when it is a well known fact that Banks and other institutions have available millions of dollars which they are ready to loan on conservative first mortgages at 6%.

Why do borrowers go to such concerns and pay exorbitant rates when they can get loans from banks and title companies at 6%?

Investors should realize that they get nothing for nothing, therefore, there must be a reason for these high yields.

The reason that a Bank or an Insurance Company will not loan even 50% on first mortgage on new buildings constructed during the present inflation is because the mortgage might become unsafe if materials and labor and especially rents, should return to normal.

Owners and builders of these new structures, not being satisfied with a small mortgage, are willing to pay higher rates and big bonuses in order to get a larger one. In many cases the mortgages are as high as 90% of the total cost of construction.

Where is the Safety?

Is it worth the risk of endangering your principal in order to get a little higher yield?

All our Guaranteed First Mortgages are on homes or substantial income-producing properties worth as much again as the mortgages.

We loan first mortgage money at 6%, take full charge of the mortgage, see that the property is adequately insured, that it is kept in good condition, that taxes are paid; collect interest and principal and give you our unqualified guarantee, backed by our total resources of over $2,000,000, that every penny of principal plus 5½% interest will be paid to you.

Our business is under the strict supervision of the Insurance Department of the State of New York. Savings Banks, Trustees and Guardians, whose investments are rigorously restricted by law, invest a large part of their funds in Guaranteed First Mortgages.

You can invest in amounts from $200 to $200,000.

Take Subway to Borough Hall Station and talk the matter over with one of our officers, or send for our interesting free booklet "The Guaranteed Way to Independence". Please mention T. 169.

PROFITS ARE TAKEN IN COTTON MARKET

Prices 35 to 38 Points Lower in Day of Evening Up—Trade Demand Slow.

Cotton quieted down yesterday with prices easing under further progress in evening up interest in October contracts before that month becomes a spot position. Near months have risen more rapidly than distant ones on all three exchanges and many holders evidently decided to realize profits before notices were issued today. With reports from drygoods quarters that raw material has advanced faster than the trade has been able to establish manufactured goods and at the same time maintain free distribution, a more conservative attitude prevailed in many directions. Prices lost 35 to 38 points.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

FRENCH TRADE BALANCE.

Import Surplus in August 102,000,000 Francs Below July, 194,000,000 Below 1922.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—French foreign trade results in August are reported officially as follows: Imports were 2,633,217,000 francs, against 2,615,648,000 in July, while exports were 2,542,820,000 against 2,423,781,000. The increase in exports was occasioned mostly by larger shipments of finished products.

The surplus of imports in the visible trade balance, amounting to 90,000,000 francs in August, compared with an import surplus of 192,000,000 in July and with one of 284,000,000 in August, 1922. Of last month's merchandise import excess it is generally agreed that the invisible items in the trade account largely made up for the deficiency.

CARLOADS OF WHEAT FAIL TO CHECK RISE

Winnipeg Market Depressed, but Markets Here Show Gain of Nearly Two Cents.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Arrival of 4,152 cars of wheat at Winnipeg for two days, including Sunday's inspection, compared with 2,976 cars for the same period last year, failed utterly as a bearish influence.

While cash prices were somewhat easier as compared with October early and the latter finished ⅝ cents lower for the day, American markets developed pronounced strength toward the last, and the finish was with net gains of [illegible]@1⅛ cents, September leading and only 1⅜ cents under December.

September and May corn sold at a new high for the season, closing ⅝@1⅛ cents higher, September leading, and finished at 88⅛ cents, with shorts persistent buyers.

Above 69½ cents for December resting orders to sell were encountered, but they were finally absorbed, the bulge being checked by the closing bell and fears of heavy resting orders to sell at seventy cents.

Crop Expert Le Count was out with an estimate of 3,200,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,891,000,000 harvested last year. Cromwell estimates that the loss from frost in Illinois is 7,000,000 bushels and in Iowa 12,000,000.

THIRTY MINUTES FROM WALL STREET

Unfurnished housekeeping apartments—not a hotel

Rentals, including maid and other service, $1500 to $3000

Ready in September—leases from October 1

UNCOMMON ADVANTAGES

The Concourse Plaza presents an unusual opportunity to obtain comforts and correct service at a moderate cost. It is essentially an apartment house—all the privacy of a home. But besides housekeeping advantages of a special character tenants have all the service conveniences of a first class hotel.

Rental includes service of chambermaid, bathroom maid, charwoman, houseman, porter and bellboy, vacuum cleaning, window washing, etc. This eliminates the servant problem, and constitutes a saving for the tenant which makes the rental extraordinarily moderate, especially when the many other advantages also are considered. Character of the management assures a carefully selected personnel and unobtrusive and efficient service.

An exceptionally open and airy and altogether agreeable location, on the highway to Westchester. Yet but 15 minutes by subway express from the 42nd Street banking and office center and 30 minutes from Wall Street.

TWO, THREE and FOUR rooms. Larger suites can be arranged. Every room an outside room. View of Sound and Palisades.

Each suite, including the two-room, has full kitchen, completely equipped, and a dining alcove furnished with harmonious china closets. Two-room suite (only) is equipped with twin disappearing wall beds and has a dressing room fitted with chests of drawers.

Clothes closets are lined with Kilmoth cedar, permitting storage of even furs.

Special arrangements to ensure privacy and quiet. Many of the apartments are entirely separated from neighboring suites by corridors. All deliveries are made by bellboy into double-doored package receiver in kitchen, which requires no response from within. Ice compartment opens to service corridor.

Playground on roof, with attendant in whose care children may be left during short absences.

If desired, all marketing for household may be done at commissary in building, where provisions will be on sale at market prices. Other conveniences include laundry, barber, valet, hair dresser, manicure, mail chute, etc.

Restaurant of the highest class—service to apartments at all hours. Cuisine francaise. Orchestra. Grill. Club breakfasts.

Ballroom, in which there will be a dance once a month for tenants and their invited guests. This or smaller ballroom may be engaged for private dances. Spacious lobby and lounging room.

Under management of George E. Everart, formerly of Hotel Plaza, New York, and previously at the Ritz in London and Paris.

Typical suites, fully furnished for display purposes by H. F. Huber & Co., now open for inspection.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—5¼ to 5½ per cent. for the best names.

Saturday—5¼ to 5½ per cent. for the best names.

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Small Damage to Filatures.

Filatures in the Japanese earthquake area numbered less than 10 per cent. of the total, and the direct damage to them was slight, according to advices received by the Japanese Embassy and given out yesterday by the Silk Association of America. At Yokohama 29,500 bales of raw silk were destroyed, the main loss being filatures' stocks in consignment. The Yokohama Specie Bank is financing filatures and has agreed to purchase export bills. Shipments to Yokohama are being made by automobile and boat, and testing is being done by individuals. Some of the large exporters there and in Kobe have already made shipments. On 300 bales sold the market was 140 to 150 yen above the pre-disaster figures.

Pipe Sales Are Increasing.

Pipe sales show a considerable increase over last year, leading manufacturers say. Preference is given to briars in the dark Italian finish. The Eastern trade likes straight stem pipes, while the West is inclined to the bent variety and New England to the "poker" pipe. Leading bowl types are the Hungarian, the ball and the egg shapes. Better quality merchandise is in demand. Pipe sets are beginning to move well for the holiday trade.

To Expedite Garment Shipments.

A new system was put into effect yesterday by the Traffic Department of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association whereby freight or express shipments of garments will be followed through by telegraph. It has been found that delays en route frequently caused merchandise to arrive too late for use by stores holding special sales. These delays will be done away with by the new plan, which will check up the carriers and advise by wire the date of delivery. "Shipments are growing heavy," N. A. Walsh, Traffic Manager, said yesterday, "and the new system will prove especially valuable during October."

Gray Goods Were Quiet.

The break in cotton yesterday brought about less activity in the local gray goods market. Second hands quoted 38½-inch 64-60s at 10⅛ cents, and it was said that that figure might be shaded by a good buyer. The same was true of 39-inch 68-72s, which were quoted at 12 cents by first hands. In the sheetings very little was done. Buyers paid 9 cents to second hands for 36-inch 5.50s, with the mills asking from 9¼ to 9½ cents for that construction.

Price Trend Downward at Sale.

Although prices received for most of the pelts sold at the opening sessions of the annual raw fur sale here yesterday were higher than those brought by similar skins at the Spring auction, they reflected the downward trend of the open market. Bidding was fairly active, and wolf was the only collection to be "bid in" to any extent. Yesterday's average prices showed this way when compared with the Spring averages, the figure indicating the percentage of advance or decline: White fox, 5 lower; red fox, from a drop of 10 on Far Eastern to a rise of 25 on Russian and darks; blue fox, 10 higher; cross fox, 10 higher; Northwestern and Mongolian wolf, 15 lower; Western and Southwestern wolf, 40 lower, and timber wolf, 25 lower.

TENANT-LANDLORD FEUD.

Former Says He Was Threatened; Latter Tells of Wasted Water.

Joseph Romeo of 136 School Street, Yonkers, landlord of an apartment house, was brought to court by Nicholas Rosata yesterday, who accused the landlord of threatening him with a revolver. Romeo denied he had a revolver and charged Rosata with letting water run to waste to square matters with him. Rosata denied wasting water. Judge Morris L. Rosenwasser warned both sides to keep the peace and dismissed the case.

$200,000 Fire in Erie, Pa.

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 24.—The Stanley Furniture Company store was destroyed and several other buildings damaged by fire here today. Two firemen were injured. The loss to the Stanley Company was estimated at $150,000. The other buildings were damaged to the extent of $50,000.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The air pressure remained high during Monday over and east of the Mississippi Valley and it was relatively high and rising west of the Rocky Mountains. Pressure was low Monday night over the Northwestern States, with a centre of minimum pressure over North Dakota.

Mild temperatures prevailed during Monday over nearly all parts of the country, although there were frosts Monday morning in Nevada, southern Utah and northern Arizona.

There have been scattered showers during the last twenty-four hours along the immediate Atlantic Coast and over the Northern Plains States, the Rocky Mountain region and along the North Pacific Coast.

The outlook is for generally fair weather Tuesday and Wednesday and a continuation of mild temperature in the Washington forecast district, although showers are probable in Florida and extreme southern Georgia.

FARM LEADER URGES NO EXTRA SESSION

National Grange Representative Tells Coolidge Legislation Won't Help the Farmers.

SUGGESTS A WHEAT BOUNTY

Senator Wheeler Wants the President to Call Congress to Pass Price-Fixing Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—President Coolidge had the unusual experience today of having a representative of a notable organization of farmers tell him that it would be unwise to call Congress in extra session to enact farm aid legislation and equally unwise to adopt the proposal of Representative Anderson of Minnesota to put an additional duty on wheat with the object of helping wheat-growing farmers. His visitor was T. C. Atkeson, Washington agent of the National Grange, the oldest of the organizations devoted to the interest of the agricultural classes.

Representatives of farm organizations and several members of the Senate and House whose constituents are comprised largely of farmers and those dependent upon them have been urging the President to call Congress in extra session to pass bills intended to relieve the agricultural situation.

Mr. Atkeson's viewpoint was radically different from that of the general idea of the others. He said, after seeing the President, that he believed that Mr. Anderson's proposal to raise the present duty of 30 cents a bushel on wheat would have the effect of sending so much Canadian wheat to Europe that the American wheat growers would not be able to dispose of their surplus product in the European market.

While he thought legislation would not help the situation, which he attributed to economic causes, Mr. Atkeson said there might be a legislative remedy in a Government bounty on wheat, such as was bestowed on sugar in one of the general tariff laws. Through this means the farmer might get an adequate return on his product, in Mr. Atkeson's opinion, but his general attitude appeared to be that legislation would not cure the evils of which agricultural communities are complaining.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who will be one of the Progressive leaders in the new Senate, also conferred with President Coolidge today and urged him to call an extra session to pass a minimum wheat price fixing law. He suggested to the President that the recognition of the Soviet Government of Russia would open up a very much needed market for the surplus products of American farms.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—Gray Silver, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation, said today that he had written the Interstate Commerce Commission urging a 20 per cent. reduction in freight rates on wheat and flour destined for export markets.
